Information for Prospective Visiting Scholars
The Bohn Group has previously been proud to be home for many researchers visiting Notre Dame. We currently are open to applications for Visiting Scholars and Research Visitor positions. Interested parties are encouraged to inquire about openings within our group by contacting Dr. Bohn directly (either at pbohn@nd.edu or bohngrp@nd.edu) with the following information:
- Name, home country, visa needs (if necessary)
- Current CV
- Prior education
- Description of your research interests and an explanation of how our research would benefit by adding you to our group
- Tentative timeline for starting employment

Dr. Bohn will respond to your inquiry informing you of any available openings. If there are no current openings, please note that all CVs and contact information for applicants are kept on file for up to 9 months. If new positions open up, these applicants are revisited to see if anyone is interested.

If an opening is present, Dr. Bohn will contact you to further the application process, which requires 3 letters of reference, and a preliminary phone interview to assess research experience and future interests. Applicants making it through a phone interview may be invited to campus to meet with our group members, tour the facilities on campus, and give a seminar on their previous research. Please note that visiting scholar positions do not receive salary from the Bohn Group or the University of Notre Dame. Applicants must have funding from their home institution or have adequate personal finances to support themselves during their stay at Notre Dame. There are specific requirements regarding the amount of funding as well as a mandatory level of health insurance while at ND, and the applicant must provide materials proving they have substantial funding for these expenses before a visiting scholar appointment can be processed.

More information for visiting scholar applicants, including specifics regarding the Notre Dame appointment process, professional development resources, and info on life in South Bend can be found at: Notre Dame’s Office of Postdoctoral Scholars and Other Research Appointments.
