GLORIA CARNEY SHEALEY
President & CEO

A passionate construction industry leader, Gloria views leadership as service; holds integrity, excellence, and professionalism as the standard of measure; considers relationship as the basis of engagement; strategically thinks, plans and executes as a business approach; and shares a great desire for people, especially women, to be fearless, high performing, living examples of success in life and business. She has demonstrated these attributes over the past 25 years as President of The Daniele Company, a woman-owned commercial general contracting and construction management firm located downtown Durham, NC. Her leadership strategy of collaborative partnerships with select major construction companies and owners has resulted in a portfolio of over $560 million in projects completed across the industries of K-12 and higher education, healthcare | life sciences, governmental institutions, and manufacturing with specific focus in pharmaceutical, automotive and aviation construction. Her community service has a national, state and local impact as an executive member of various boards. She also served with distinction as the first woman President of the National Association of Minority Contractors (NAMC), a 48-year old construction trade association from 2012 – 2015. Gloria has received numerous honors and awards for her notable leadership and service to the community.
