

August 27, 2017

In light of the number of our festival attendees and volunteers who are impacted by the damaging floods from Hurricane Harvey, the Kerrville Folk Festival Foundation regrettably has canceled the Kerrville Fall Music Festival scheduled for Sept. 1, 2, and 3, 2017.

Hearts are heavy in Texas and in our Festival community as stories of disaster, loss, and impending losses pour in from Texans throughout the stricken parts of our great state.

The Kerrville Folk Festival and the Kerrville Fall Music Festival is staffed by a small army of volunteers, many of whom live in the Houston area. Many of the artists booked to perform at this year's Fall Music Festival fly here from many places; flight schedules will be impacted for days to come. Numerous artists have suffered loss of home, equipment and vehicles, and have by dealt with other challenges.

For folks who planned to attend and purchased advanced tickets, or reserved RV sites at Quiet Valley Ranch for the Fall Music Festival, we ask your understanding and concurrence. Since the Kerrville Folk Festival Foundation is a 501(c)3 non-profit, your advance purchases can now be converted to a tax-deductible donation to the festival which will be making a donation to Hurricane Harvey victims relief.

The Kerrville Folk Festival community is like a family, and many in our family will be in need of our help and support in the next couple of weeks. We extend our love, prayers, helping hands and healing hearts to those who need us now.
