AUGUST 2016

C3R has an impressive record of growth as a successful minority business enterprise. We are considered trusted advisors to the government agencies that we support and are favored partners in the objective of keeping our nation secure. Faced with known and unknown terrorism, weapons proliferation, and cyber threats, our core skill sets in antiterrorism and force protection are perfectly matched to support the needs of our present and future customers. However, as a small minority-owned business, one of our greatest initiatives is the internship program we offer students who are seeking real world experience. This summer, middle and high school interns, Myles Smith, Deja Rhodes, Janeida Rodriguez, and Leala Miller, provided office support and completed general administrative tasks for the company. Most importantly, as C3R interns, they served as volunteers throughout the community. Through SERVE, a program of the Northern Virginia Family Services, the C3R Interns performed playground maintenance at the homeless shelter. The C3R Interns volunteered with the Back to School Book Bag Drive that was organized by SERVE and the Manassas Adventist Prep School. Through the SERVE, Hunger Resource Center, the C3R Interns volunteered with donors and scheduled food drives to the shelter, received food donations, and labeled and stocked them for distribution. Additionally, the C3R Interns served food at the D.C. Central Kitchen in Washington, D.C. At the end of the summer, the C3R Interns integrated all of their professional development skills into an outstanding resume which will position them well for their next great opportunity.
