The Washington Square Arch, circa 1831

The WSOAE is proud of its long, illustrious history. Eighty-eight years of attracting remarkable, talented artists and crafters from across the U.S.A. and every corner of the world.

Eight Decades of Art

It all began one balmy spring day in 1931. It was the heart of the Depression era and many people were desperate. Needing funds to pay the rent on a Greenwich Village studio that also served as his home, Jackson Pollock took a few of his iconoclastic paintings down several flights of stairs and set them up on the sidewalk, near Washington Square Park. He was soon joined by his friend and fellow Village artist, Willem DeKoonig, who was in equally dire straits.

The value of their art would soon skyrocket. Although we don't know how many works they sold that day, or how much they took in, the seed had been planted for a major annual event. The following year, according to the New York Times, 200 other artists, calling themselves the Artist's Aid Committee, joined in and raised a total of $9,716. Their enterprise caught the attention of such art world luminaries as Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney (founder of the Whitney Museum of Art) and Alfred H. Barr, Jr. (Director of MOMA), who organized the biannual event that evolved into the Washington Square Outdoor Art Exhibit and now has been a major attraction for artists and art lovers for over eight decades.

Early exhibitors included such artists as Alice Neel, Saul Berman and Ilya Bolotowski who lived and worked in the Village, and Beauford Delaney, who trekked down from Harlem. The exhibition has grown over the years and is today a venerated showcase for artists from points well beyond New York. Its scope has also expanded to include an eclectic array of media and styles, ranging from traditional to cutting edge.

Among the milestones that mark the past 87 years are the concept of the artist being selected as exhibitor by a jury of fellow artists, based upon images of submitted work; the abolishment of an early ban on nudes; the inclusion of photography as an art form; and the recognition of one-of-a-kind handmade crafts.
