A NEW NICHE IN FINANCE

Crowned the “Fairy Godmother” of divorce by the New York Post’s Julia Marsh, Nicole is a founding partner and President of National Divorce Capital, Inc. and directly oversees NDC’s client relations.

NDC offers necessary funding for women who are seeking assistance to cover attorney’s fees, accountants and personal living expenses while going through a difficult time their lives. NDC provides a customized approach to funding to help create a balanced situation for those that need help.

Even though Nicole’s duties for NDC does not include acting as an attorney or giving legal advice, she is committed to promoting self-confidence in women so that they may feel empowered to overcome hurdles in their personal relationships. Her background includes being an experienced matrimonial attorney who practiced with a number of top-rated divorce law firms throughout her career. She was instrumental in the litigation of a large number of complex family law cases involving both financial and custody disputes, including some of the leading reported cases on these areas.

She has held the prestigious role of General Counsel at one of New York’s largest real estate appraisal firms, and has significant expertise in the areas of family law, custody and visitation, domestic violence, complex financial issues, commercial litigation and property law. Nicole understands the nuances of the divorce system from the inside out and is frequently quoted and has appeared in national media on divorce related issues. She has created a unique opportunity for women to seek financial assistance during what could be one of the most challenging times in their lives. Nicole is passionate about helping woman and has used an out of the box approach to doing so.
