ABOUT KERC

Since 2002, Kwayaciiwin has worked with First Nation communities in the Sioux Lookout area to help students succeed academically by providing culturally appropriate resources and materials, and by supporting schools in areas such as literacy, numeracy, data collection, technology, and governance.

As First Nations asserted control of education and began to operate their own schools, Kwayaciiwin was formed as response to supporting those schools and to address academic gaps. We work with local education authorities, chiefs and councils, education directors, principals, teachers, and classroom assistants to support student success.

Anishinine/Anishinaabe language and culture remain at the heart of Kwayaciiwin's work, rooted in the knowledge that students with a strong sense of identity and belonging will thrive academically and personally.

Services include coaching and mentoring of school staff, curriculum development, school success planning, learning assessments, student performance data collection, special education support, professional development, and assistance with information technology and management.

Kwayaciiwin Education Resource Centre supports First Nations student success in partnership with our communities.

Total Physical Response Training

Total Physical Response (TPR) is a method of teaching First Nations languages and vocabulary concepts by using physical movement to react to verbal input. The process mimics the way that infants learn their language, and it reduces student inhibitions and lowers stress.

Our First Nation Language and Immersion Specialist can visit your community for in class training of TPR and other First Nations Language teaching-techniques.

Contact KERC today and request a visit.
