

ALG Research Continues Expansion with Opening of New Office in Boston

ALG Research is pleased to announce the opening of a new office in Boston, MA, headed by partner Matt Hogan. The Boston office will be ALG's sixth location, which includes offices in Washington, DC, New York, Chicago, Honolulu and Montgomery, AL.

Matt Hogan is a New England native who has polled for the Democratic nominee in the past four U.S. presidential elections, including polling for President Obama in the key states of Florida, Virginia, Nevada and North Carolina for his 2012 re-election campaign. Matt has also polled for the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee (DSCC), the Democratic Governors Association (DGA), candidates at all levels of government from Mayor to U.S. Senate, as well as for advocacy work on issues including healthcare, education, tax policy, immigration reform, media rights, and access to the internet.

Matt holds a Masters degree in Public Policy from Harvard University's Kennedy School of Government and a B.A. in History from James Madison University. He lives in Cambridge with his wife, daughter, and son.

About ALG Research:

ALG Research is a public opinion research firm specializing in message development and strategic consulting. For nearly 20 years, we have helped clients ranging from President Obama, to EMILY'S List, to Airbnb achieve their goals. We have a long record of electing Democrats in tough states and districts, winning more Republican-held Congressional seats than any other polling firm. As pollsters, we're committed to going beyond simply providing numbers. While we're proud of our ability to collect good data, we believe polling is of little use unless it is paired with clear, actionable, strategic advice. We believe in being an active part of the consultant team to ensure the strategic recommendations derived from our research are well executed, disciplined, and exceed the expectations of our clients.
