Special Event for a Special Cause

88Keys to Cure, an Illinois not-for-profit organization, has returned this year to introduce a three-part festival featuring talented young musicians from the Chicagoland area working to make a difference in their local communities. Newest additions Colin Choi, a junior at Glenbrook North High School and Allison Lie, a sophomore at Naperville North High School join Long Grove resident, Derek Chung and Sophia Li of Vernon Hills to lead 88Keys to Cure. They are students of the Sueanne Metz Piano Studio in Long Grove.

88Keys to Cure will be continuing its mini-series of concerts on June 2 at 3 p.m at the Moss Auditorium at the University of Illinois Chicago and on June 3 at 3 p.m. at the Grand Piano Haus in Skokie. The concerts will benefit the General, Minimally Invasive, and Robotics Surgical Division at UIC. The Division is currently constructing a state-of-the-art robotic surgical facility and will concurrently commemorate the 50th anniversary of the first kidney transplant at UIC.

Since its inception last year, 88Keys to Cure has remained active. In June 2017, co-founders Jarrett Takaki of Wilmette, Grace Tu of Glenview, Derek Chung, and Sophia Li proudly presented a check of $11,500 to the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU) at the Ann & Robert H. Lurie Children's Hospital of Chicago.

Collectively, the members share over 30 years of piano studies with Mrs. Metz. They have won competitions locally, nationally, and internationally as well as having performed in venues across the nation and around the globe. While their resumes speak volumes about their piano careers, they hope that the legacy they leave behind will be defined by contribution, not by accomplishment.

They continue to promote the goal for young musicians to identify with a charity or cause of their choosing, by spreading classical music appreciation and enrichment within their various communities. With all the support, 88Keys to Cure sets the platform for future students to carry on this vision and honor the values taught by their teacher.

Please join 88Keys to Cure for their final concerts on June 2 and 3 with guest performances from Dr. Giulianotti of the Robotic Surgical Division at UIC. For more information, visit their website at www.88keystocure.org or following them on their Facebook page @88KeystoCure. Donations to the NICU at Lurie Children's and the General, Minimally Invasive, and Robotics Surgical Division at UIC are still being accepted.

Congratulations to Buffalo Creek Brewery who now is distributing Long Grove's Favorite brews in cans throughout the Midwest.
