PET CARE GUIDELINES – POST MICROCHIPPING PROCEDURE

Adverse reactions to microchips or post-procedure complications are extremely rare. A small hole is left in the skin after a microchip has been implanted, which needs about 24 hours to seal over. YOU can help to avoid any complications by:

- * Taking your pet home and let him/her have a quiet day
- * Do not take your pet for a long walk (or run) for the rest of the day. Try not to let your pet get over-excited.
- * Limit your pet’s exercise – no rough play or playing ball for 48 hours
- * Keeping your cat indoors for the rest of the day
- * Not using your dog’s harness for walking or in the car for 48 hours
- * Not giving your pet a bath or let your pet go swimming for 48 hours
- * Not letting your pet roll around in the dirt for 48 hours
- * Not applying any flea treatments or tropical preparations to the microchipped are for 48 hours
- * Do not rub or prod the insertion area for at least 48 hours as this may cause the microchip to dislodge
- * Do keep an eye on the insertion area for any signs of swelling, bleeding or irritation. If you notice any of these symptoms, seek veterinary advice as soon as possible

MICROCHIPPING

Microchipping, a is the insertion of a permanent electronic identification device into the animal. Each microchip has a unique number which provides permanent identification and lifetime registration for your pet with Global Micro Animal Registry.

Now your pet is micro chipped you should register it with your local council. Within the next 14 business days you will receive an email from Global Micro Animal Registry which will allow you to download a certificate with all the information your council requires.

The microchip number can be read with a microchip scanner by vets, shelters or councils. The unique microchip number can be traced back to Global Micro Animal Registry where your details and that of your pet are stored. If your pet is lost anywhere in Australia your contact details can be accessed 24/7 by Authorised users.
