

CourtTech USA and McWIL Squash Join Forces

Steve Hall Named President of CourtTech LLC

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

October 11, 2019 – (St. Simons, GA) – CourtTech USA and McWIL Squash announced today they are combining their operations, resulting in a more robust product offering for customers and a higher level of service in the court building business. Steve Hall, Andrew Bailey, Frank Blake Jr. and Jordan Aldrich bring their collective expertise to the partnership, with the former CEO of Home Depot, Frank Blake Sr. providing outside advisement to the new business. The agreement is effective immediately and the company will operate as CourtTech USA LLC.

“Since its inception, CourtTech has been a leader in the squash court building business,” said Hall, the new President of CourtTech. “Its Court System is recognized as the best in the market. I’m looking forward to bringing the CourtTech team together with the McWIL team to deliver the best court building products available. The alignment of the CourtTech Sand Filled Wall System with McWIL’s Panel Court System, along with capabilities in Pickleball, and Racquetball court construction will create an unparalleled offering to the marketplace.”

“Bringing McWIL and CourtTech together will immediately expand our product offerings and will result in better customer service, knowledge and delivery,” says Bailey, who will continue as an active advisor and business partner to the new CourtTech USA in addition to his role as Executive Director of A+ Squash, a squash and education youth development nonprofit serving Atlanta, GA. “Jordan will see to it that we have a continuity to our operations and are able to maintain the high standard we have already set with installations at CourtTech.”

“As majority owner of CourtTech worldwide, it’s my duty to see the business evolve and grow,” said Frank Blake Jr., partner and advisor. “With this agreement, we’re charting a course that will accomplish that goal of expansion and overall improvement. Combining the history and reputation of a company like McWIL Squash with CourtTech gives us an advantage with almost any court building project. It’s going to be an exciting time for CourtTech.”
