She maintains a full time private practice in a multi-specialty practice in North Vancouver, British Columbia.

SYNOPSIS:

This hands-on course is designed for the clinician who wants to learn more about soft tissue graft procedures for root coverage and peri-implant tissue enhancement using collagen matrix materials as an effective alternative to autogenous tissues.

This course will include a review of recession classification to predict outcomes, the etiology of recession and treatment indications and current microsurgical grafting methods. Pros and cons of various grafting approaches will be discussed. Course participants will develop basic skills to treat simple to moderately difficult cases through lecture/video and case review as well as hands-on practice on pig jaws.

OBJECTIVES:

- In-depth procedural review of the ARC protocol (visit www.elatus.ca for more information)
- Review of surgical instrumentation, flap designs, suturing techniques
- Recipient site preparation
- The rationale for use of autogenous graft substitutes
- Review of surgical instrumentation
- Healing phases and treatment outcomes
- Post-surgical management
- Identifying treatment risks and managing surgical and post-surgical complications
