

Cross Cultural Consultancy and Motivational Speaker

David Hudson

David identifies and belongs to the Ewamain and Western Yalangi clans of Far North Queensland, and was raised in Cairns and Kuranda.

David's skills in Indigenous tourism awareness and practice as well as cross cultural content and awareness make him a valuable representative to have as part of an established or emerging business that identifies with Indigenous employment, delivering and implementing a positive approach and message to a business team and adopting workplace practice.

This involves how to strengthen involvement and understanding with cross cultural differences, not only with staff but also customers and clients and the broader Indigenous community.

It is becoming well known that our tourism partners and the wider community are realising the importance of Indigenous knowledge and tourism and there is a steadily growing desire to have these components in one's business were possible.

Being a multi talented performer both contemporary and culturally, he is able to bring 32 years of performance experience, international travels and knowledge to the forefront of his deliveries.
