Culture and Behavioral Health

Culture is important to behavioral health care because it:

- Touches all of our relationships;
- Affects people's access to resources and care;
- Influences how someone understands and communicates symptoms to others; and
- Clarifies how the environment creates barriers or opportunities to access care.

Center for Community Learning, Inc

Language and Communication Environmental Assessment

1. Determine what languages (other than English) are spoken by the populations of focus in the community.

2. Determine if there are special communication needs such as speech or hearing impairment.
