VISIONS 2100: Stories from Your Future

By John O'Brien

Visions 2100 shares eighty stories from some of the world's leading environmental thinkers and influencers and tells of their visions of the future world.

Climate Change visions can be scary but foretelling of catastrophe does not inspire the wider community. Storytelling of a better world can mobilise communities and global networks to deliver extraordinary outcomes. The global Visions 2100 Project seeks to recalibrate environmental communications by telling stories of a better world.

Join author John O'Brien and five of the contributors to find out more, hear their futures and learn how to create your own better world.

Share your own vision of a better world at www.visions2100.com

Christiana Figueres, Executive Secretary, UNFCCC

*'The future is a beautiful, if challenging, partner.
Your choice is whether you take the risk in having a first date or are happy to accept a life of regret.'*
