

VOICES HEARD

Kentucky

Calling All Artists!

The Girl Project and Woodford Theatre invite artists of all genres to let their Voices be Heard in 2018!

Voices Heard: Kentucky is a two-hour community performance event where artists are invited to perform 2-5 minute pieces, highlighted by large digital projections by local artists. There will be three performances spanning the weekend of February 23-26, 2017.

Performance Guidelines

Things to consider as you develop your proposal and pieces.

- Although The Girl Project is a feminist movement, all proposed work must support equality and may voice a diverse range of marginalized groups.
- Men are encouraged to participate.
- Varied forms of artistic expression are encouraged, including satire and comedy, spoken word, music, visual art, dance and theatre.

Now, more than ever, is the time when ALL voices must be heard. We look forward to hearing yours!

- Performances and exhibitions must be rated PG-13 (in addition to adults, middle and high school students will attend the performance)
- Visual art will be photographed, paired with a performance piece, and shared as digital set projections.
- All proposed pieces must be technically simple. Woodford Theatre will provide basic lighting, sound and technical support.

FEBRUARY REHEARSALS AT WOODFORD

Participating artists will rehearse independently, and have two meetings with representatives of The Girl Project for guidance and assistance with needs or questions.

Following these meetings with TGP staff, artists will be asked to attend a technical rehearsal as well as a dress rehearsal at Woodford Theatre. The dates/formats of these rehearsals are TBD, however artists should be aware that these rehearsals at Woodford will be mandatory. We will also be flexible with artists traveling from out of town!
