SOCIAL INTERCOURSE.—There is nothing more distant from all rule and natural climes, than the reluctant feeling the backward sympathy—the forced smile—the checked conversation—the hesitating compliance, which the well off are too apt to manifest to those a little lower down: with whom, in comparison of intellect and principles of virtue, they frequently shrink into insignificance.

A soul conversant with virtue, resembles a fountain, for it is clear, gentle, sweet, communicative, rich, harmless, and innocent.
