

Invest In Vol Offers Vacluse Volatility Strategies

Invest In Vol announced today a strategic partnership with Vacluse Partners - a quantitative investment advisor focused on volatility as an asset class - to offer Separately Managed Accounts (SMAs) on two popular volatility strategies

Invest In Vol, LLC announced today the completion of a strategic partnership with Vacluse Partners, a quantitative investment advisor focused on volatility as an asset class. This latest partnership allows Invest In Vol to deliver two of Vacluse's most successful volatility strategies via its growing Separately Managed Account (SMA) platform.

Vacluse Partners was co-founded in 2011 by Dr. Peter Rothschild - an expert in detecting weak signals in noisy data. Vacluse's highly successful volatility strategies have taken advantage of Peter's innovative advances in X-ray signal processing to improve the risk-return of popular listed volatility products. Peter holds a PhD in High Energy Nuclear Physics from MIT and over 40 industry patents.

The Vacluse AlphaVol Strategy employs an actively managed portfolio of VIX linked Exchange Traded Products to harvest the risk premium found in the VIX futures market, while the Vacluse AlphaVol Long Bias Strategy takes an opportunistic approach to try and benefit from large, periodic changes in market volatility. Both strategies have a near two year track record, and will be available for investment on the Invest In Vol platform from February 1, 2019. “The growth in volatility investing over the last few years has been impressive, and many investors are realizing the advantages of this alternative source of returns,” said Dr. Stuart Barton, founder of Invest In Vol. “Finding quality managers who really understand the volatility market is still a major challenge for most investors, so adding Vacluse to our platform will help investors gain access to strategies they may previously not have known about.”

Dr. Stuart Barton, CFA is a volatility trading specialist with nearly 20 years' experience managing large volatility portfolios. Invest in Vol is an SEC Registered Investment Adviser located in Mt. Kisco, NY. For more information about Invest In Vol, please visit <http://www.investinvol.com>.
