Seminars offered*

Thursday, Sept. 13 - All Have Sinned

6:30-7:15 p.m.

Instructor: Dave Robinson

This seminar will look at the meaning and implications of a much-quoted verse from Romans 3, "All have sinned and fall short of the glory of God," giving special attention to the flow and thought in the context of Romans.

Monday, Oct. 8 - Beyond the Teacher's Guide

6:30-7:15 p.m.

Instructor: Andi Grant

Don't bore your students! Teacher's guides and curriculum books are a great starting place for powerful lessons; but that's just it, they are a starting place. Learn how to turn a generic lesson from the teacher's book into a lesson that you are eager to teach, engages your students, and creates anticipation for the next lesson.

Thursday, Nov. 8 - What About the Old Testament?

6:30-7:15 p.m.

Instructor: Aaron Prohs

What place does the Old Testament have in the life of the church? Do we really need it since we are now living in New Testament times? This short seminar will help lay a foundation to encourage Christians to recognize and celebrate the place of the Old Testament Scriptures in the Church.

Tuesday, Dec. 11 - Getting the Begats: Making Sense of Jesus' Genealogies

6:30-7:15 p.m.

Instructor: Scott Gribble

"And Azor begat Sadoc; and Sadoc begat Achim; and Achim.....zzzzzz" We've all been there. And if you are like me, you've skipped ahead to "Now the birth of Jesus . . ." Join this short informative study of the genealogies of Jesus as recorded in the books of Matthew and Luke. While you may still struggle with the pronunciation, it will help you understand the differences between the genealogies and appreciate their purposes.
