

Avifaunal checklist for the Floresta Amazonica Hotel, Alta Floresta, MT, Brazil

The 235-hectare forest fragment adjoining the Floresta Amazonica Hotel is the largest forest patch within 6km of the city and thus one of the most isolated forest patches in the region. It is also the most heavily ornithological-inventoried forest patches in the region and this has allowed us to document some of the avian extinctions that have occurred since its isolation. The synergistic impacts of forest isolation, disturbance (e.g. fires, hunting), edge-effects (e.g. meso-predator release) have led to the disappearance of several bird species such as Bare-eyed Antbird (Rhegmatorhina gymnops) and Rufous-capped Antthrush (Formicarius colma) along with all foliage-gleaners. However, the forest still retains a rich and varied bird community with new and interesting species discovered every year; such as the Harpy Eagle nest found in 2005, or the singing Long-tailed Potoo found in 2006. Some species may not be permanent residents within the patch (e.g. large forest eagles) and others are only known from a handful of records but may retain populations in the under-watched back part of the patch. Although even to the untrained ear the dawn chorus here pales into insignificance compared with the Cristalino, the FAH fragment still warrants a few days exploration especially as some birds are more reliable here than on the other side of the river, e.g. Crimson-bellied Parakeet, Cinnamon-throated Woodcreeper and Chestnut-tailed Antbird.

Alexander C. Lees, Centre for Ecology, Evolution and Conservation, UEA, England.

The FAH fragment located within the city limits.
