

Risk and liability statement

Guest acceptance of risk

- 1) Wild Voss AS is an adventure company based in Voss, Norway. According to Norwegian laws (*), all providers of outdoor adventures must systematically conduct and document continuous risk-mitigating and risk-reducing measures (in Norway known as internal control). This document is a part of our internal control system.
 - 2) In this document, all our products, services and activities are referred to as «activities». All of our activities have a designated start-time and a designated end-time. Wild Voss AS accepts no liability or responsibility for events, mishaps, accidents or injuries occurring prior to the announced start-time, or after the announced end-time of each activity.
 - 3) In this document, we refer to all customers on our activities as «guests». Non-paying customers and minors (under the age of 18) are also included in this definition.
 - 4) In this document, «wild nature» refers to outdoor areas with limited or no man-made infrastructure, and with limited or no safety installations. «Wild nature» is a complex natural environment where all variables concerning risk and safety cannot be foreseen. Travel in «wild nature» will consequently have real risks associated with it.
 - 5) Wild Voss AS hereby declares that all our activities are in accordance with Norwegian laws and regulations. Guests on our activities agree that all legal disputes arising from (but not limited to) misconduct from our side, including any accident, damages or injury related to our activities will be handled inside the Norwegian body of justice and tried under Norwegian courts of law only.
 - 6) Our ability to deliver the agreed-upon activities are stated in a separate document called «Terms of service». As a guest on our trips, you hereby accept these terms of service.
 - 7) Wild Voss AS is an adventure company, offering a series of activities in wild nature. Consequently, we frequently travel away from roads, marked paths, mobile reception, safety installations and emergency services. Guests joining our activities understand that in the wild nature, safe travel depends on (but are not limited to) the following safety practices:
 - a. Following the instructions of the guide(s) at all times.
 - b. Take an active role in assessing your own ability, both physical and mental, to complete the activity.
 - c. Wearing and using the proper and agreed-upon clothing, footwear and safety equipment.
 - d. Reporting to your guide any fatigue, illness or injury to you or someone else in your group.
 - e. Prior to departure, informing your guide about medical concerns or known medical conditions that might possibly have an impact on the safe execution of this activity.
 - 8) Prior to departure, your guide will inform you about possible risks and how to mitigate them during the activity. Wild Voss AS and its guides will work hard to avoid damages, accidents and injury during this activity. Note that there will still be risks present, with the potential of injuries such as (but not limited to) cuts, bruises, fractures, loss of consciousness, paralysis, permanent disability or even death. By signing this document you accept the risks involved in the activity.
- 1) Laws: «Produktkontrolloven», «Internkontrollforskriften».
