Focus points

The Study Association Deliberation Platform (StOP) has three specific purposes. These are the following points:

Communication

For each association, proper communication is vital. Efficient communication ensures all members are aware of what is going on, what activities are planned and other important information. In a time when physical contact is limited, decent communication is even more important but also more challenging. This year StOP will therefore focus mainly on online communication. The communication of StOP will mostly be online (newsletters and promotion), but the board will also try to support study associations with their own online communication and promotion. In addition, wherever necessary StOP will try to act as an intermediary in communication between study associations and the Universities about topics that are for example taken care of on a university-wide scale and not per faculty. Evidently, this will all be planned in cooperation with the Assessors Platform Leiden (Leids Assessoren Overleg, LAssO). Finally, StOP wants to draw all associations' attention more actively to the fact that large activities that are also open for external visitors can be promoted in the StOP newsletter for a wider reach.

Sharing of knowledge

Boards often encounter complex problems when managing study associations. As an individual board you often know how to find solutions, but combined knowledge can often offer more help. The StOP board therefore wants to stimulate knowledge sharing between different boards. In order to support the boards, the StOP annually organizes various consultations, meetings and training courses on certain subjects, the necessity of which is inventoried by each board at the beginning of each academic year. Examples include organizing the meetings on acquisition, promotion and the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR), but also with fairly new meetings on more specific challenges that associations encounter such as internationalization, alumni affairs, sustainability and diversity. We are happy to tailor the specific themes to the needs of the member associations. These meetings are open to all members of the StOP and attendance is encouraged to ensure as much input and cooperation as possible. In addition, the board aims to actively use the knowledge gained and problems raised at these meetings in its communication and promotion of interests towards the delegations of the university and university of applied sciences.

Connecting

The focus will be on connecting member associations with each other. It is expected that, certainly in the time of COVID-19, they will need input from other associations and a relationship with other associations. The board tries to facilitate this by stimulating collaborations in the committees, by promoting association activities that are open to external parties and creating a Google calendar with various activities (the StOP and association activities open to external parties). Connection will also be aimed for during the various consultations, training courses and meetings. This is expected to go quite naturally. To further stimulate this, informal activities will be organized after the trainings, meetings or discussions. This way, many boards will be able to connect at an approachable level and it is easy to connect with other boards.

Although StOP works towards these three goals each year, every board gives their own interpretation to achieve them. In addition, the board has decided to continue with the fourth focus point of 2019-2020, Social involvement.

Social involvement

Just like last year, the board will commit to the social involvement of the study associations. The board will therefore elaborate on the sustainability meeting by turning it into an interactive workshop, so that the StOP can convey the importance of sustainability and environmental awareness to the study associations. Much attention will also be paid to diversity and inclusion through thematic training throughout the year. In addition to the workshop and training, the board will maintain regular contact with the university about diversity and sustainability, so that interesting information about this can be sent with the newsletter every quarter during the year.

General policy

General Assemblies

The convocation of the general assembly is sent by the Secretary at least five working days before the General Assembly (GA) to the member associations. Taking into account that many study associations have internationalised or are in the process of doing so, the GAs will be held in English, as soon as someone is present who does not speak Dutch. If only Dutch-speaking members are present, the GA's will be held in Dutch. The policy documents will be made available in both English and Dutch. If the GA is held in Dutch, an English summary will be provided afterwards. The policy documents will only be distributed digitally for sustainability reasons.

Audit Committee

StOP has an Audit Committee consisting of two members of StOP. The members of this committee will be elected at the Change of Boards GA. An audit committee is installed to ensure the financial transparency of the StOP. The Audit Committee will check the Treasurer of the StOP twice a year in its activities. During this check, the budget, the balance sheet and all declarations of StOP board members will be checked.

Board of Advisors

The Board of Advisors (RvA) consists of former board members of the StOP of different years. Together they form the institutional memory of the StOP and they assist the current board with solicited and unsolicited advice. The RvA can think along about new proposals and help with previous experiences so that two boards do not have to go through the same issues.

The RvA has no voting rights or control function but is intended as an easy way for the board to exchange ideas informally. The board strives to organize an introduction at the beginning of the board year and will then maintain contact where necessary.

Association Meetings and Assessors

Association meetings (VerOs) are an important means of communication between the university, associations and StOP. The board strives to be present at all association meetings of the faculties. By attending the VerOs, StOP can provide information about university developments, learn what is going on within the study associations and gain opinions on certain issues. Moreover, StOP themes can be cited, such as diversity within a study association or the Overlap Agreement Committee. The faculty responsible on the board maintains contact with the relevant assessor and discusses with him or her the interests of the study associations at that faculty. The board strives to consult with the LAssO at the beginning of the year to avoid overlapping objectives and make agreements for the year.

Contact Leiden University en Leiden University of Applied Sciences

In order to keep the ties with Leiden University of Applied Sciences and Leiden University as good as possible, the board will maintain contact with them. These contacts are there to represent the member associations and promote their interests, but also to be able to pass on issues from the two educational institutions to the associations.

The Treasurer will primarily maintain contact with Ms Jonas Westhoek of the University of Applied Sciences. The Commissioner External Affairs will primarily maintain contact with Jeroen 't Hart of Student and Educational Affairs of Leiden University. The Secretary will act as a secondary contact person for both Leiden University and the University of Applied Sciences.

Email

From this year onwards, StOP will use an own domain via GSuite. This means the board will continue to work with Gmail, but does have email addresses that end with @stopleiden.nl. Since an email address through Plexus was not a possibility and through a faculty not desirable, this was chosen as the best option.

Interfaculty activities

All interfaculty activities initiated by the StOP are listed in the annual plan, and will be stated in the convocate of the GA. Also a Google calendar will be created in which these activities can be found for all member associations. This agenda will also contain activities that are organized by member associations and that are open to external parties. Participation in the organization of the Leidsch Debat and the Interfaculty Party is free of charge. This year it was decided to request a contribution for participation in the organization of the Interfaculty Congress. For more information about this, see the heading Interfaculty Congress. Participation in the organization of the Interfaculty Congress and the Leidsch Debate are open to all member associations. The composition of these committees will consider the diversity in faculties and the motivation of the member. It has been decided to compose the committees from board members of member associations. This choice was made in order to have someone partake in a meeting and be able to commit to something on behalf of their association. A committee member is unfortunately not able to make such decisions, and the board wants to ensure that the commitments made are carried by the board of the associations. The board certainly sees the advantages of non-board members partaking in committees, but believes that the course of events within a committee will be delayed.

Bank account

The Treasurer will be looking at the options for a less expensive bank account. The costs for the current bank account are relatively high. In case of a less expensive option, the Treasurer will gather information on changing banks.

StOP-cup

This year the board will award another StOP cup. This healthy competition between boards ensures greater connection and involvement, which is what the StOP absolutely strives for. The winner of the StOP cup is ultimately determined by the points that the boards collect throughout the year. The board with the most points wins the StOP cup. The StOP board is responsible for keeping track of the points, but it is of course helpful if the study associations give the board a hand in this by emailing when they are eligible for points. The StOP cup will eventually be awarded at the General Assembly: Change of the board.

Below is a representation of the points distribution:

Portfolios

Now follows an overview of all portfolios, accompanied by the policy plans for 2020-2021. The portfolios are in the alphabetical order of their Dutch names.

Acquisition

The exchange of information on acquisition has been proven to be useful in the past years. StOP wants to continue making this exchange possible. This year, StOP is planning to organise an acquisition training with a professional, who can give information on relevant subjects. StOP will be looking at a contract format. This format can be used as a starting point for contracts made by associations.

Alumni

The aim of this portfolio is to make it easier for associations to come and stay in touch with alumni. The aim is to organize both a meeting and a training for associations with a view to how they can involve alumni. The aim is to organize the meeting in the first semester, as this can relatively easily become an online meeting. Before, but again during the meeting, it will be examined what the associations need, whether tips can already be exchanged between them and what StOP can contribute to this. Before the training, which is expected to take place after the meeting, it will be assessed what the associations need. During the training, the aim is to raise issues such as approaching alumni, how alumni can best be involved in the associations and what the added value of alumni is. Before the training, it will be examined whether an external party can be engaged to inform these subjects in a substantiated manner.

General Data Protection Regulation

The General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) has been enforced since 25 May 2018. This law influences the way in which associations handle personal data. This year, the focus regarding GDPR will be on drawing up a Data Processing Agreement (DPA) between the associations and Leiden University. As well as communicating the wishes of the associations of Leiden University of Applied Sciences regarding GDPR to Leiden University of Applied Sciences. In addition, a training will be planned, in which the focus will be on knowledge sharing. The aim is to invite a speaker, who can provide the necessary information and answer questions.

Boards activity

The activity for the boards will become an informal activity to connect boards of associations. By bringing associations into contact, the aim is to increase the chance of collaboration and knowledge sharing between boards. An activity will be considered where the boards can make contact in a calm manner and whether a party can be organized afterwards.

Board career development

This year, StOP wants to do research on possibilities to let board members get the best development out of their board year. This relates to personal and professional growth, and the development of skills. This year, StOP will map out opportunities for development and bring this to the attention of the member associations.

Emergency Response and First Aid course

The emergency response course this year will be organized again at the end of the academic year. In recent years, StOP has played a facilitating role in this by forwarding the available data to the associations and compiling a list with names to send to the contact person of the university. However, it has become apparent last year that there is a fixed list of the available places per study association. This year, the board will therefore adhere to this permanent list, and only have the associations that do not have a fixed place on this list send a motivation for the places that are left. In this way the board can immediately gauge whether there is more demand than supply so that we can take this into account in the future.

Because of COVID-19, the prospective boards of study associations have only received an online emergency response course, which means that the prospective board members have not been able to obtain a full emergency response certificate. The board will look into the possibility of offering a safe physical course with the contact person of the university. This year the board will also look further into the possibilities of a first aid course for board members. Contact with the Student Desk of the Red Cross will be continued for this.

Overlap Agreement Committee

StOP will also take place in the meetings for the Overlap Agreement Committee this year. The following parties take place in this committee: a representative of the Executive Board (CvB), the Study Advisors' Consultation (STAP), the Local Chamber of Associations (PKvV), the Study Associations Deliberation Platform (StOP), the EL CID / Vademecum committee and as audience a member of the Leiden Assessors Consultation (LAssO). In this, StOP stands up for the interests of the study associations and focuses mainly on the first-year days and weekends. This year, attention will also be paid to the agreements made regarding the overlap between the first-year weekends of the study associations and Quintus' VAP activity. The aim is to ensure that these no longer overlap, so that study associations and Quintus are no longer in each other's way. To achieve this it is important to make clear agreements with Quintus at an early stage, but at the same time it is important to ensure that all study associations also adhere to the agreements of the Overlap Committee. StOP will endeavour to ensure that the agreements are better known and are both tangible and clear to the study associations.

Diversity

Diversity and inclusivity are major challenges for many associations, but that makes it all the more important. The aim of the university is to make underrepresented groups within the university feel welcome. Study associations play a large part in this, as the associations are directly involved in the student experience of students from all kinds of different backgrounds. The University's Student and Educational Affairs Department has therefore joined forces with StOP for the past three years to organize a diversity training. Last year it was decided to organize three training courses throughout the year instead of one large one, in order to sharpen the content and increase relevance. The board wants to continue this in the coming year, whereby the three training courses will also have different themes.

Sustainability

Last year the first sustainability meeting was organized. Since sustainability is an important theme and the university is also committed to this, the board wants to continue its focus on sustainability. However, the board wants to increase involvement by making the meeting an interactive workshop in collaboration with the Leiden University Green Office (LUGO), where in addition to sharing the experiences of study associations, there is also room for sharing information and the importance of sustainability in associations. This way, the board hopes that associations will get good tools to make their association more sustainable.

Forum for Large Associations (GroVer)

StOP wants to continue the Forum for Large Associations (GrOver) this year. This forum is intended for large associations with approximately 1000 or more members. The associations that fall under this are L.P.S.V. Aesculapius, BASIS, B.I.L., De Leidsche Flesch, J.F.V. Grotius, HSVL, Labyrint, MFLS, SPIL and Emile. During the discussions with this forum, topics will be discussed that are considered useful by the associations. The topics that recur in the portfolios of the StOP Board can also be discussed in these discussions. The aim is to hold four meetings this year.

Interfaculty Congress

Unfortunately, the Interfaculty Congress was cancelled last year for several reasons. Two of the main reasons have presumably been the lack of a theme and promotion. For these reasons, the board will choose this year to give the Interfaculty Congress a theme again, that is broad enough so that it appeals to several, if not all, faculties. By announcing the theme early in the year, the committee can start promotion before speakers have been confirmed. This gives the committee more time to draw attention to Congress. Because good promotion is of the utmost importance to a successful Congress, the board will choose to make one specific committee member responsible for the promotion, rather than having it arranged by third parties. This way, the committee itself has more control over promotion and this will improve efficiency. In addition, the board will strive to increase the awareness of the Interfaculty Congress by means of the following two strategies: choosing a fixed annual date for the Congress so that it can always be taken into account in the annual plans of boards in the coming years, and creating a separate Facebook and Instagram page that can be used annually.

Interfaculty Party

The Interfaculty Party (InFaFe) is an event that is organized in a collaboration between eight associations and StOP. The organization of the InFaFe originally started with six member associations. A few years ago, StOP joined this. It is important to know that this committee does not fall under StOP, such as the Interfaculty Congress or the Leidsch Debate. StOP only facilitates and often chairs the meetings. The concept has been a success for a number of years and since last year two new associations have joined. The associations that are part of the organization are: Aesculapius, B.I.L., CoDe, Grotius, HSVL, Labyrint, M.F.L.S. and SPIL.

Internationalisation

This year, StOP intends to further expand the portfolio of internationalisation. A key concept in this will be 'inventory', both of what international students want and expect from study associations, as of what the problems and challenges are those associations encounter. In order to get an overview of what international students want that is as complete as possible, StOP will investigate whether this information can be obtained through university means and not through the associations themselves, as that would stir the risk of a one-sided picture. This knowledge can then be used for the sharing of knowledge. In addition to the internationalisation meetings of last year, during which a training was given for associations who are internationalising, this year the aim will be to stimulate knowledge sharing among the associations themselves. Through individual meetings with the associations, StOP hopes to get a picture of what aspects of internationalisation are challenging or what aspects are actually going well, and based on that knowledge encourage boards to get in contact and help each other. Finally, the aim is to use this knowledge to talk to the university and hopefully ease internationalisation for associations.

Introduction weeks

This year, StOP wants to promote the interests of study associations during the various introduction weeks in Leiden and The Hague. It wants to achieve this by discussing various topics, such as promotion opportunities and activities during the introduction weeks, with the parties involved and, where necessary, taking on a coordinating role. In addition, the board strives to play a facilitating role in organizing an activity for and by study associations during the EL CID week.

The Commissioner External Affairs and Treasurer will keep in close contact with the EL CID / Vademecum Committee, the board of the Orientation Week Leiden (OWL) and the board of The Hague Orientation Program (HOP).

Forum for Small Associations (KleVer)

Since the Forum for Small Associations, a forum for study associations with less than 1000 members, was a success last year, the board will continue organizing this next year. This forum will be accessible to all associations that can find themselves with problems that small associations are facing. The board will make this clear during the introductory meetings with the associations. Furthermore, the agenda items will mainly consist of items submitted by the associations themselves. The topics that recur in the portfolios of the StOP board can also be discussed in this consultation.

National Deliberation

Within the National Deliberation portfolio, the board will look at establishing contact with deliberation platforms for study associations from other student cities. The focus here will mainly be on Amsterdam, Rotterdam and Delft, as a number of minors can be taken in these cities by students from Leiden University and these cities are easy to travel from Leiden and The Hague. This goal has been chosen with a view to broadening knowledge about study associations for StOP. It will be examined whether a sister network can be set up, so that there is room for broadening knowledge for StOP board members. This goal has the added value for StOP that it is possible to critically examine whether there are areas for improvement within the association. Contribution from other consultation platforms for study associations can shed a new light at practical issues that the StOP board may be facing.

Leidsch Debat

Just like previous years, StOP will work with the study associations to organise the Leidsch Debat. Since there national elections in 2021, it would be extra interesting to invite prominent politicians as speakers. Although StOP will take on a leading role within the committee, the committee members will get plenty of room for the organisation and content of the event. As is customary, SPIL will take the initiative together with StOP.

Media

The media of StOP consists of internal communication and external communication. The internal communication of StOP takes place via the monthly newsletter. External communication mainly takes place via the website and social media.

Monthly newsletter

The Secretary sends a newsletter to the members every month, with the exception of the summer months. The purpose of this newsletter is to keep the member associations informed of the activities of StOP and important information relevant to study associations is shared. In addition, the newsletter is the opportunity for member associations to promote open activities among other associations. Member associations can pass these activities on to the Secretary.

Website

The aim is to improve the website even more in the coming year. In recent years, a lot of hard work has been done on the website and the focus this year will therefore be on updating and building on these improvements. First of all, the board wants to pay attention to the visual and technical problems that the website has. In addition, minor improvements will be made and more information will be shared about the interfaculty activities organised by StOP, for example through reports. In addition, this year the possibility of integrating a digital calendar into the website will be re-examined. Finally, the board strives to improve the mobile version of the website. The Secretary and Commissioner External Affairs will be jointly responsible for the website.

Social Media

StOP manages different types of social media: Facebook, Instagram and LinkedIn. In the coming year, the board wants to actively manage these various sites by promoting its own activities, but also opening this space to promote open activities of other study associations. The board strives to use LinkedIn more actively by posting reports of activities and contacting study associations. Instagram will also be used more actively, for example by providing photos and atmospheric impressions of StOP activities. The Commissioner External Affairs will assume responsibility for social media.

COVID-19 support

The COVID-19 pandemic has changed the form of introduction weeks, education and social life dramatically. As a result, it is likely that study associations will have to adjust their regular recruitment techniques, committee composition and activities. Many questions will arise and a platform where these difficulties can be discussed exclusively will be of enormous added value. The aim will be to organize several theme meetings, in which, for example, 1.5m activities will be discussed, how applications will take place, how things will travel, etc. During the VerOs and the introductory meetings, it will be assessed what study associations need and how StOP can help. The University, the University of Applied Sciences and LassO will be consulted on such activities.

Promotion training

Last year, a promotion meeting was organized where all members of StOP were welcome to share their knowledge and experience about promotion channels and how to reach the members. The StOP board would like to continue the line of last year by bringing boards, mainly promotion portfolio holders, of the various member associations together to share experiences and information in the field of promotion. The aim is to have as many portfolio holders as possible participate in the meeting. In this way, not only chairmen of study associations come into contact with StOP, but also other board members. The objective is to offer an interactive meeting at the beginning of the academic year in which the opportunity for discussion and knowledge sharing between associations is offered. At the end of the academic year, an attempt is made to organize a training, which is mainly aimed at the new candidate and f.t. boards. The exact focus of the training will be further determined in consultation with the member associations. Possible topics could include the use of social media and the website, designing promotional material, drawing up a promotional plan and reaching the correct target group.

Sports Tournament

After a successful sports tournament in 2018-2019, StOP wants to organise a sports tournament again this year. This tournament will be open for both boards as well as members of all member associations. The tournament will be held towards the end of the academic year and the board is looking into what sports could be part of the tournament.

Study Association Reader

The study association reader contains information about all associations that are a member of StOP. The aim is to improve connections among boards and encourage cooperation. This year it will contain more information that could help associations determine more easily with which other associations they can work or consult (this would include size of the association, acquisition target, presence of international students, etc.). The board will also look into the possibility of turning the reader into an online platform, on which every association would have a page that contains the information that is usually in the reader.

In de studieverenigingengids staat informatie over alle verenigingen die lid zijn van het StOP.

Revenues

General

The contribution is estimated from the number of current members of the StOP. There are 56 member associations that all pay € 10, which comes to € 560 on the Membership Fee item.

Activities

The income from the Boards Activity item is still unknown, because the details of this activity are not yet known.

Other

The item Reservation 2020-2021 consists of the money that was not spent in the past year as a result of the corona crisis. This item amounts to € 471,67.

Expenditures

Association fees

This year the item GA is added. This item amounts to € 50. Its intended use is to provide an informal meeting after the General Assembly, or for any location costs. Normally, there are no

Policy 2020-2021
