

Analysing MPF

Target Language	Meaning	Pronunciation	Form
Vocabulary: awful Context: "I feel awful today. My back and my head hurt really bad."	Extremely bad	BrE: /'ɔː.fəl/ AmE: /'ɑː.fəl/ Two syllables. Stress on the first syllable.	ungradable adjective - can be used before a noun or after linking verbs. collocates with adverbs such as totally, really, absolutely, bloody
Vocabulary: to come down with something Context: "I think I'm coming down with flu."	To start to suffer from an illness, especially one that is not serious. (Cambridge Dictionary Online)	/'kʌm daʊn wɪð fluː/ Stress is usually placed on "down" and the noun following the phrasal verb.	Subject + Verb (present continuous) + adverb + preposition + noun (singular, uncountable) Phrasal verb Verb and particles cannot be separated Verb "come" varies according to tense and subject. Past tense: "came"; past participle: "come"
Grammar: to be used to Context: "I used to be fit when I was younger."	The structure "to be used to" is used in this context to express a past state that is no longer true.	/'juː.tu/ /juː.tə/ (weak form) Stress is normally placed on "used" and the verb following the structure.	Affirmative: subject + used + to + main verb. Negative: subject + did + not + use + to + main verb Question: Did + subject + use + to + main verb