

Maya Capital appoints Rob Reiskin as Senior Advisor

London, 12 September 2016

Maya Capital LLP, a specialist real estate investment firm, announces the appointment of Rob Reiskin as a Senior Advisor to provide additional expertise and guidance to Maya Capital's management team.

Rob Reiskin has over 25 years of experience in the European and the US real estate markets. He has lived and worked in London for 18 years and was, most recently, the Co-Head of Europe and an equity partner at Heitman from 2011. During his tenure, Rob shaped and implemented the corporate and investment strategy, and led investments totalling approximately €2 billion. He expanded Heitman's platform into Germany, France, the United Kingdom and the Netherlands and broadened the firm's capabilities and access to capital.

Prior to Heitman, Rob was the Head of Investments at Curzon Global Partners / AEW Europe, where he led approximately €6 billion of investments across 16 European countries.

Rob has a BA in Economics from Trinity College (Hartford), where he was also a former member of the Board of Fellows. He completed his MBA at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania, where he received the William Zucker Real Estate Award.

David Pralong, Managing Partner of Maya Capital, commented:

"We are delighted to bring on board such an experienced and accomplished professional as Rob. After welcoming Charles Pridgeon in March to our Advisory Board, we continue to expand our team and are supported by high-level senior advisors to help us build a stronger brand and investment house. Having been instrumental to the growth of two large pan-European investment firms, Rob brings significant private equity and corporate experience, which will support our growth ambitions."
