6 Tips to Boost Your Home's Curb Appeal

Go Green

health benefits

Add fresh flowers and greenery to the exterior of your property. Using plants to frame and accentuate key visual points such as entryways and windows can transform your home for the better. Health benefits include improving air quality and boosts mental and physical health.

Add Fencing

keeping it private

Fencing gives much-needed privacy, so if you don't have fencing already, you may want to check out quality fencing that will last a lifetime. The right fencing adds value and visual impact, especially if you're planning to sell.

Keep Up Your Lawn

good care maintenance

Regularly mowing the grass, pulling out weeds, and raking off leaves will help ensure you keep on top of things. Make sure that your lawn is well watered as to eliminate the chance of any brown spots

Incorporate Lighting

disperse with any dark entryways

Make your entryway welcoming, dark entryways are not hospitable. Update any older hanging pendants or sconces by the entry to more trendy light fixtures. Add a string of lights to help light your walkway,

Camouflage Electrical Boxes

hiding the eyesore

An electrical box outside the front of your home can be eye-catching for all the wrong reasons. Paint the box so it blends in, use a color that matches your home's siding so the box is well camouflaged.

Look Up to the Sky

beautifying the roof

Is your roof missing any shingles/tiles, or is it dingy and streaked? A good cleaning or, maybe a roof replacement will up your home's curb appeal factor. If you are thinking of selling, make sure the roof is looking good!
