

ARBITRATION PLACE

An all-encompassing approach

Press Release

Arbitration Place Welcomes Brian Casey and Joel Richler

November 2016 (Toronto) – Kimberley Stewart, CEO of Arbitration Place, and Brian Casey and Joel Richler of Bay Street Chambers are delighted to announce the relocation of Bay Street Chambers to Arbitration Place in the Bay Adelaide Centre, Toronto.

“We are thrilled to announce our new arrangement with Bay Street Chambers, a mutually beneficial move that highlights again the commitment Arbitration Place is making to arbitration in Canada”, said Stewart. “It will further cement Toronto’s ever growing prominence in both domestic and international arbitration. Being at Arbitration Place will provide Brian and Joel – and parties appearing before them – with access to Arbitration Place’s all-encompassing support services and state-of-the art hearing facilities.”

Casey, a widely respected authority in arbitration law, established Bay Street Chambers in 2012. Richler joined Bay Street Chambers earlier this year after a long career with Blake, Cassels & Graydon LLP in Toronto.

“Bay Street Chambers is committed to commercial arbitration and mediation in Toronto,” said Casey. “We believe that relocating Bay Street Chambers to Arbitration Place, while maintaining our separate chambers, will enable us to better serve parties who appear before us and to advance the use of commercial arbitration and mediation in Canada.” Richler added, “We very much look forward to working with Kim and her team in Arbitration Place’s state-of-the-art hearing centre.”

Ronald Slaght, a leading Canadian litigation and arbitration counsel with Lenczner Slaght, who also sits as an arbitrator, remarked, “Brian and Joel are terrific arbitrators. The dedication and expertise they bring to their arbitration cases will be a perfect fit at Arbitration Place. I say that as someone who has experienced both comfort and professional services over numerous matters at Arbitration Place.”

Brian and Joel will maintain their existing Bay Street Chambers email addresses, websites and telephone numbers.
