The Alberta Farm Animal Care (AFAC) board of directors is proud to announce the election of Cora Scheele of Linden, Alberta as the new Chair. Scheele, a hatching egg producer and a member of the board with the Alberta Hatching Egg Producers, has been a member of the AFAC board for 5 years. She is a committed ambassador for animal welfare in Alberta's livestock sector.

"Alberta Farm Animal Care plays an important role in the province, representing all livestock sectors by communicating the industry's best practices to producers and sharing our story with the public," says Scheele. "I am excited to continue building relationships within the sector and to be representing livestock producers."

“Cora is incredibly supportive of our work and will be a great representative of AFAC and the livestock industry. We are looking forward to working with her, the board of directors and members as we plan for the future of this organization,” says Annemarie Pedersen, Executive Director, AFAC.

Also during the recent AFAC board meeting James Jenkins was acclaimed as Vice Chair, Brent Bushell as Finance Chair and Casey Vander Ploeg as Advisory Council Chair.
