“About 7.8 million children across the country live in households headed by grandparents or other relatives. About 2.5 million grandparents report they are responsible for their grandchildren’s care.”
Generations United

“Grandparents who find themselves in the position of raising their grandchildren can benefit from education and support services provided within a group format. The opportunity to meet others who manage similar life challenges can help break down feelings of isolation and may increase their use of positive coping strategies.”

Laurie Johnson-Wade, LDA Co-Founder, serves as the GAP facilitator. Laurie has completed approved training from Pennsylvania Family Support Alliance (PFSA) a statewide child-abuse prevention and family education organization; Laurie is also a trained facilitator of Pro-Act’s Family Education Series. GAP will utilize the “Recovering Families” Workbook, a copyrighted publication of PFSA.

Laurie, along with her husband, Dr. VonZell Wade, LPC, each have over 25 years off personal recovery experience; and are currently “Standing in the Gap” to raise their grandsons and have been blessed and well-equipped to offer peer-to-peer support for Grand Families!
