

DAVID CASSELMAN SHOW NOTES: AND JUSTICE FOR ANIMALS PODCAST

DAVID CASSELMAN PART 2:

“The goal in ‘breaking’ an elephant is that the fear of man becomes greater than the love of their mother.”

“If we as a public say it’s not what we want. It will stop. The public is the driving force.”

“The law always lags behind.”

Part two of our fantastic interview with acclaimed attorney and founder of the Cambodia Wildlife Sanctuary, David Casselman, is once again, all about the elephants (and also Orcas)! And we love it!

As Executive Producer of the powerful documentary, Love & Bananas, which chronicles the rescue of an abused, blind Asian elephant in Cambodia, David explains what making the film was like and also discusses what led him to open the one-million-acre jungle and wildlife conservation project, Cambodia Wildlife Sanctuary, which is dedicated to not only saving elephants and other endangered species but protecting and rehabilitating diminishing jungle habitat. David also discusses the importance of activism and discusses how lawyers and activists work together to get powerful legislation passed.
