CHETWYND TRADE SHOW 2018

The Chetwynd Trade Show took place last weekend from Friday until Sunday and had a ton of great vendors there to showcase their business and products. On top of the many vendors there was also a kids zone with performances from the Hula Hoop Circus.

There were several prizes up for grabs at many of the booths, including a vacation for 2 to Las Vegas sponsored by The Travel Agent Next Door- Dawson Creek and Joe Disher walked away with the prize.

LITTLE ATHLETES RECEIVE BIG AWARDS

Chetwynd Minor Hockey's annual awards night for the Atom, Pre-Novice and Novice teams was held Tuesday, April 10th. President Jarret Bissett opened the evening with thanks to the sponsors and parents.

"We'd like to thank our refs and also the players' parents. If it wasn't for the parents, we wouldn't be here," said Bissett. "So hopefully you kids make sure to thank your parents for putting you in hockey and driving all those long days for a game or tournament," he added, addressing the players. Bissett also thanked Simply Perfect Catering for preparing the food.

A moment of silence followed for the Humboldt Broncos hockey team and their families.

Kaydence Roberts was awarded $200 off next year's registration for selling the most cash draw tickets, and Mike Lalonde was named Coach of the Year. Mike thanked the Managers/Team Moms, and reiterated that without them, hockey wouldn't be possible.

After Mike's speech, the awards were presented.

Atoms:

Most Improved – Connor Galbraith
Most Dedicated – Orrin Pierce
Leadership – Rylan Bissett
Pre-Novice:
Most Improved – Gage Warncke
Most Dedicated – Blake Janzen
Sportsmanship – Mason Galbraith
Leadership – Jackson Nelson

Novice:

Most Improved – Trai Pierce
Most Dedicated – Braylon Lalonde
Sportsmanship – Grady Collins
Leadership – Easton Desjarlais

One might think that 4 – 8 year olds don't have a lot of skill to offer in the world of hockey, but the banquet proved that even the little guys bring a lot of talent and potential to the table.

Chetwynd Minor Hockey's AGM is this Tuesday. Several committee positions will need to be filled in order for next season to move forward. If you'd like to get involved with hockey, plan to be there April 17th.

MEET THE MAYOR

April 13, 2018

Remembering Councillor Brenda Maisey. When we lose people to the end of life we are suddenly and irrevocably faced with the knowledge of an enormous hole in our lives. This is not only so for the families of those who have left us behind; it is also so for the community in which they have lived and served.

Our friend and colleague in local government, Brenda Maisey, lived in Chetwynd for more than thirty-five years. During those years she didn't sit idly watching the community go by. She got involved in community life in a big way and made changes, not only in the community she called home but in the lives of people. These changes are still evident today, years after Brenda completed her three terms on Council.

Brenda was passionate about people, especially those people whose circumstances of life rendered them less able, or even unable, to meet the challenges of adequate shelter, child care, proper food on the table, indeed, a table on which to put the food.

I first encountered Brenda while I was associated with Northern Lights College. As a community-based college, one of our functions was to provide life-skills and job training. Brenda was involved in organizing training for women to assist them in bridging the gap between unemployment and employment. "Women in Work Boots," I remember it after 25 years, intended to put the boots on women so they could put the boots to the industrial job.

I left the College in January, 2001, and did not see Brenda again until November, 2002, when she was elected as a first-term Councillor in your local government. We were colleagues in that role for the next nine years. Astonishing, isn't it, that time can slide by so quickly, so quietly, while work gets done and while Brenda remains Brenda: compassionate, insightful, always ready to take Council to task if we were not being sufficiently caring of the needs of those who cannot speak for themselves.

I think this habit might have come from her birth during an air raid over London. I can just see her shaking an infant fist at the tyrant and promising him that all his fireworks would serve only to burn him to a crisp, a prophecy that came true.

In her three terms of office Brenda served in a variety of roles: Liaison with the Seniors Society, Economic Development, Healthcare promotion, Liaison with the Museum, and Community Improvements among other Council duties. Brenda's passion for accessibility, equal access, and opportunity for all was brought into everything she did in her role as Councillor. As you walk about town today, remember Brenda. Many of the amenities we take for granted and that make our lives better are the result of her being here. When she retired from Council her influence did not retire with her. I distinctly remember the chastisement Council received in question period when Brenda's standards of right and wrong with respect to accessibility were, in her estimation, violated or neglected. I don't recall the details of the issue, but I cannot forget the whipping I got as Mayor for Council's misdeeds. Thank you Brenda; we shall not forget. I would be remiss if I neglected to tell you the role she played in my election to the office of Mayor. I was dithering, neither hot nor cold, lukewarm at best. Brenda called me and in very certain terms told me to get off my couch and take a run at the office and if I wouldn't, she would – but she really didn't want to. Thanks, Brenda, without your prodding I wouldn't have been here in the best job I've ever had. For the past six years and four months I've enjoyed the role more than I can say. as a final tribute, I would like to remind you that the District of Chetwynd also recognized Brenda's contributions to the improvement of society in 2010 when she was made Citizen of the Year.

Oh, by the way, I discovered an ancient proverb that describes Councillor Brenda's obvious philosophy: "Rebuke the wise and they will love you."

KELSEY'S CHRONICLE

Meeting New People and Making Friends

Why is the concept of making friends so hard for some and so easy for others? I attempt to break this down from the stand point of someone who technically does not have any good friends. A lot of acquaintances, though!

Well initially, it's that fear of, "How can I relate to them in order to strike up a conversation without sounding too eager or interested?" so keeping that even balance is key. For someone like me who is obnoxiously loud and somewhat overwhelming, that even balance is a hard thing to master! This pairs with the assumption that conversation is wanted, because there's not always a clear indicator, unless the person is running away from you, that's pretty clear.

Second would be your willingness to put yourself out there and make time to form new friendships, which seems to have become harder than it was as a kid. My love for my house, sweat pants and my own company usually trumps this, which has been a huge deterrent on my friend making abilities.

Next would be keeping the conversation going. Sometimes the most common awkward conversation mistakes come from over thinking or trying to say too much. Let the conversation flow. If there is a break or a lull in the conversation, you could throw out a compliment- just make sure that it's appropriate. In times like this when you feel rushed, it's best stay away from comments about her mustache or his incredibly tight, nut hugging pants.

Lastly, don't over think the conversation after. Make the most of the moment while it's there and don't dwell on what should or should not have been said. Just make sure to use each interaction as a way to better your next conversation with a potential friend.

In a way, making friends is like dating. It can go smoothly with someone if there is an equal amount of interest and openness, but can also go all kinds of wrong if one party isn't as willing to build the connection. And then there's just people who don't click. This could be for one reason or another, but more often than not it's a preconceived assumption of the persons intentions without knowing them.

DAWSON CREEK BC LIQUOR STORE PLACES FOURTH IN SUPPORT DRY GRAD CAMPAIGN

The Dawson Creek BC Liquor Store was one of the top five fundraisers for this year's Support Dry Grad campaign. The province wide campaign, which ran from March 4th-31st, raised over $278,000, which will be donated to school districts throughout the province in order to help schools plan alcohol free graduation activities. The Dawson Creek location came in fourth place in the entire province, raising $6,356 towards the cause.
