Peace River Hydro Partners hit with a $662,102.48 fine

This is the third time the company has been fined in three years by WorkSafeBC. The company has been fined over $1.6 million since the project was started.

WorkSafeBC conducted a series of inspections at this firm's worksite, a hydro dam construction project. Several health and safety deficiencies were observed related to the use of wheel chocks and curbs for rock trucks, training and documentation, and emergency facilities, chemical labelling, and ventilation in a lab. The firm failed to install adequate curbs where there was a danger of a vehicle running off the edge of an elevated area, and failed to ensure that each piece of equipment was capable of safely performing its functions. The firm also failed to provide its workers with the training necessary to ensure their health and safety, and to keep adequate training records. In addition, the firm failed to take action to correct reported unsafe conditions without delay, and failed overall to ensure the health and safety of all workers at its worksite. These were all repeated violations.

The report also said "The firm also failed to provide its workers with the training necessary to ensure their health and safety, and to keep adequate training records. In addition, the firm failed to take action to correct reported unsafe conditions without delay, and failed overall to ensure the health and safety of all workers at its worksite."

In August of 2019, Peace River Hydro Partners was fined over $662,000 after an employee received an electrical shock. WorkSafeBC said the circuit breaker had been improperly maintained.

The other fine in May of 2108 was for over $310,000. WorkSafeBC said the company failed to protect workers from silica dust while building the diversion tunnels.

Fact: Kleenex tissues were originally intended for gas masks. When there was a cotton shortage during World War I, Kimberly-Clark developed a thin, flat cotton substitute that the army tried to use as a filter in gas masks. The war ended before scientists perfected the material for gas masks, so the company redeveloped it to be smoother and softer, then marketed Kleenex as facial tissue instead.

Minister's statement on April Labour Force Survey

Carole James, Minister of Finance, has issued the following statement on the release of Statistics Canada's Labour Force Survey for April 2020: "The April labour force numbers provide a clearer picture of the severe impacts of COVID-19 on the economy in B.C. and across Canada. Every sector of the B.C. economy has been hit and many B.C. families are reeling.

"That is why we launched our COVID-19 Action Plan to support people and businesses through this pandemic, and why we're working hard to get that support to those who need it. In its first week, more than 400,000 British Columbians have been approved to receive the $1,000 BC Emergency Benefit for Workers.

"This week, Premier John Horgan announced our government's plan for a gradual, cautious lifting of restrictions, under the direction of Dr. Bonnie Henry, provincial health officer, and with participation by various business sectors. "Thanks to Dr. Henry and her team, along with the people of B.C. for embracing her guidelines, our province has been lauded for our work on COVID-19. "The personal and economic pain that COVID-19 has caused around the world is unprecedented in our lifetime, but there is light at the end of the tunnel.

"Recognizing our province's strong economic fundamentals, we are working to build a robust rebound for B.C. and with everyone's continued co-operation and confidence, we will get there."

Campsite kitchen essentials

With May Long Weekend looming in the near future, I am sure if you are anything like me, you're in a mad rush to get your trailer or tenting gear ready to go. And if you are also like me that May Long Weekend seems to be our "camping trial run". This means I will usually notice on Saturday morning all the things I have forgotten to load up. To keep myself a little more organized this year, I have found this list of necessities to make sure that my family is prepared to get out in the bush and enjoy a peaceful weekend of nature, and hopefully have to forgo learning how to eat our soup with a fork because I have forgotten spoons.

- Matches, lighters or firelighters
- Plates and bowls
- Cups and mugs
- Cutlery
- Cooking utensils (spatula, tongs, etc.)
- Pots and pans
- Knives
- A cutting board
- A can opener
- A dishpan, biodegradable soap, a sponge and towels
- Containers, bags and food wrap for storing leftovers
- Aluminum foil
- Paper towels
- Garbage bags
- Potable water
- A cooler and ice bags
- A coffee maker
- A camp stove and fuel
- A telescoping fork
- A grill (for cooking on the fire)
- Scissors

For added convenience, use foldable or nestable tableware, multi-purpose cutlery and cookware with detachable handles. This way you can reduce your load but still have a hearty spread.

Kayaking: good for body and mind

Kayaking is a lot of fun and offers a number of physical and mental health benefits. If you need to be convinced to give this sport a try, here's what you should know.

PHYSICAL HEALTH

In addition to providing a great cardiovascular workout, kayaking strengthens your arm, shoulder and back muscles. Plus, it helps you exercise your core muscles, which is great for your posture and balance.

Kayakers can burn 300 calories an hour or more, depending on their weight and level of exertion.

MENTAL WELL-BEING

Paddling on the water is soothing and helps eliminate stress. In fact, outdoor activities in general are known to improve your mood and self-confidence.

Finally, if you need any more encouragement to go kayaking, it's a great sport to enjoy in the company of friends and family.

Fact: Johnny Appleseed's fruits weren't for eating. Yes, there was a real John Chapman who planted thousands of apple trees on U.S. soil. But the apples on those trees were much more bitter than the ones you'd find in the supermarket today. "Johnny Appleseed" didn't expect his fruits to be eaten whole, but rather made into hard apple cider.

Our police officers

Unsung heroes in local communities

Good policing shapes communities. It enforces the rule of law and provides people with safe places to live and raise their children. Unfortunately, police officers are unsung heroes in many areas.

It can be difficult to appreciate the same law enforcement officers who dole out traffic tickets and hand out fines. Too often, such interactions eclipse the daily hard work and dedication of police forces across the country.

However, these officers put themselves in the line of fire to keep communities safe. Additionally, they solve and prevent crimes that range from robberies and drug trafficking to kidnapping and murder.

Their work puts them in contact with society's most ill-intentioned individuals, but also its most vulnerable. Law enforcement officers therefore need the grit to take down criminals and the compassion to help crime victims.

Police officers strive to establish trust and mutual respect with the various cultural, socio-economic and religious groups in their communities. They also frequently interact with individuals who struggle with substance abuse, mental illness and homelessness. As such, it's a profession that requires integrity, empathy and highly developed interpersonal skills.
