NEW LIBRARY DIRECTOR

of Education and is also a member of the BC Library Association. In 2013 Ana was honoured with Chetwynd Citizen of the year in recognition of her library and community volunteer work. In her spare time Ana gives her time to many community groups including KidSport, Minor Hockey, PAC, Canadian Parents for French and the Chetwynd Social Planning Society. "She's a dynamic professional with the business experience and technological knowledge that will allow her to lead the Chetwynd Public Library through its continuing progression," said Margaret Movold, chair of the library board. "She has strong roots in this community and a passion for community engagement. We're looking forward to working with Ana to ensure we deliver cost-effective library services while creating opportunities to connect and inspire our community in a spirit of learning and discovery."

"I am thrilled to have the opportunity to lead the Chetwynd Public Library. I am honoured to be chosen to help build on the foundations established by the Board and residents of this great community. I am also looking forward to continue working in a new capacity with such a dedicated team of library staff and board members. Our library is lucky to have such a passionate group of people who care deeply about the delivery of dynamic programs and services and I am humbled to be just a small part of this team which has such a long history of serving the area." Ana Peasgood said.

"This is an exciting time for the library, as we forge new partnerships, employ new technologies, and develop creative services to better serve our community. With respect to the past and looking to our future, I am looking forward to getting started!" The Chetwynd Public Library Board posted the position internally and were pleased to find a well qualified, local candidate who could fill the vacancy created when retiring Library Director, Fay Asleson announced her retirement in April of 2015 after over 29 years of service to our community. Quality community service and programs continue to be a library priority and Fay will continue to act as Library Director until September 1, 2015, mentoring Peasgood into the position. The board would like to express their gratitude to Fay for her years of dedicated service to the library and community as she enters a new chapter of her life.

MEET THE MAYOR

July 24, 2015

For many months I've been sharing with you the brinkmanship Chetwynd has been experiencing with its sewer system and the critical need to install a new system with up-to-date equipment capable of servicing the needs of the community for decades to come.

We have not been idly wishing for magic solutions over the months since we first discovered the raw truth of the inadequacy of the system. We have zealously presented our case, with potential solutions, to the Minister of Community, Sport and Cultural Development and to the Ministry of Environment which was holding the metaphorical gun to our head.

That gun had a very big bullet. If the Ministry of Environment had pulled the trigger, as it could have, for Chetwynd's exceeding our BOD limits, the hole in Chetwynd's operating budget would have been ruinous – and still the fix would need to be completed.

Beyond presenting our case to the relevant Ministries, we sought an audience with MP Bob Zimmer at his office in Prince George. Mr. Zimmer proved to be quick to understand the issue and an able ally in our quest for federal and provincial funding. The Build Canada funding we were seeking is three pronged. Chetwynd would have to put up one third of the cost and Canada would supply one third contingent on British Columbia's putting up the final third. You can readily see the complexity of the funding request and the crucial need to follow up all leads.

With both senior governments having to come together on the two thirds, much depended on the care with which the proposal was crafted. Chetwynd frequently sought advice from Ministry staffers as we worked our way through the details of the proposal.

Key to the success of the proposal and the project was the selection of the right engineering consultants to provide the technical expertise and oversight to bring the application to the shovel-ready status necessary for approval. Top loading of the site to compact the base was also required. (Top loading refers to piling as much as 10 feet of soil on the entire site to apply the pressure necessary to compact the soil beneath. All this top-loading material will have to be returned to the borrow pits prior to construction of the facility.) All this costs significant taxpayer dollars and the District of Chetwynd, to date, has spent approximately 700,000 of your dollars to ensure the success of the application for funding. As essential as any part of the application work was the support of the citizens of Chetwynd that you demonstrated through the counter petition in which not one citizen registered a negative response. Your support had a major impact on the decision makers in Ottawa and Victoria. With the 4.5 million dollar construction cost secured, what comes next? Well, we can all breathe a little easier and, with the breathing, our Administration can proceed with work on the final details with actual construction to begin in 2016.

INCREASES IN HIV TESTING AND TREATMENT KEY OUTCOMES IN THE STOP HIV/AIDS PROGRAM

The July 2015 Northern Seek and Treat for Optimal Prevention (STOP) HIV progress report highlights that testing and treatment of HIV are up across Northern Health, while deaths related to HIV continue to decrease. The report highlights that even with the promising start, more work is still required.

The STOP HIV project and work to reduce the spread of HIV in northern B.C. is a partnership with Northern Health, the Province of B.C., the First Nations Health Authority, Positive Living North, Northern BC First Nations HIV/AIDS Coalition, and the Central Interior Native Health Society.

"We keep working towards our goal of an AIDS-free generation, improving options available for those living with HIV, and preventing the spread of the disease," said Health Minister Terry Lake. "B.C. is recognized as a global leader in the fight against HIV/AIDS, and these results in northern B.C. show our efforts are improving health outcomes."

STOP HIV/AIDS (also known as STOP) began as a four-year pilot project running from 2009 to 2013 in Prince George and Vancouver. The British Columbia Ministry of Health initiated the STOP pilot in collaboration with the B.C. Centre for Excellence in HIV/AIDS to enhance the reach of, and engagement of British Columbians in, HIV testing, treatment and care. STOP sought to normalize testing by expanding it beyond identified high-risk groups and making it a routine aspect of medical care. The awareness campaign, which included the development of HIV101.ca, also helped the project win three International Association of Business Communicator awards and a Health Employers Association of B.C. award. In April 2013 the pilot was expanded provincially and is guided by the Province of B.C.'s strategic policy From Hope to Health: Towards an AIDS-free Generation.

There was an increase in testing of 39 per cent in northern B.C. between 2009 to 2014 in northern B.C., and the rate of testing grows each year. There are a number of projects that have helped increase the testing rate in northern B.C. Point of care testing which is now offered at eight Northern Health and First Nations Health Authority sites, allows a fast and simple screening for HIV antibodies with a small amount of blood from a person's finger. The results are available in minutes. In addition, more acute care facilities are starting to offer an HIV test as part of regular blood work. Fort St. James, Vanderhoof and Fraser Lake introduced this practice in spring of 2014. We continue to look at methods to expand and support this practice.

"We want people to know their HIV status in order to get care and treatment quicker, and take the appropriate precautions to stop the spread of HIV," said Ciro Panessa, Northern Health regional director of chronic disease. "Early diagnosis can also help the person with HIV as we can get them the appropriate care, treatment and support, working to help improve their quality of life."

Outreach to smaller northern communities and links to specialized care through Dr. Abu Hamour's clinic in Prince George continue to develop and grow. Treatment for HIV has changed since it was first discovered in the 1980s. The report shows that 40 per cent of people in northern B.C. accessing HIV treatment through Dr. Hamour's clinic in Prince George have a suppressed viral load, meaning the virus is virtually undetectable in their bodies. Working with those living with HIV to better manage their illness will continue to be a major focus for Northern Health and its community partners moving forward. "HIV does not discriminate, and we want to be able to support people to stop the spread of the disease and support those living with HIV to have access to treatment," said Dr. Abu Hamour, Northern Health's regional blood borne pathogens specialist. "We utilize all the tools we can to support residents of northern B.C., including telehealth, visiting their communities, and increasing the awareness of HIV among local practitioners. We will continue to work on increasing awareness and improving access to care."

Even with the successes for the STOP HIV program, HIV rates remain high across northern B.C. To address this, Northern Health will continue to work with community partners across the north to reduce HIV through prevention, harm reduction, testing, care, treatment and support. Deaths related to HIV in northern B.C. have dropped from 13 in 2009 to 5 in 2014. It is the goal of the Province of B.C., Northern Health, and our partners to continue reducing these numbers, allowing people to live longer lives.
