Deferred Stumpage fees for British Columbia During The COVID-19 Pandemic.

Minister Doug Donaldson and Parliamentary Secretary Ravi Kahlon with the Ministry of Forests, Lands, Natural Resource Operations and Rural Development made an important announcement the morning of April 30th 2020

The British Columbia government will put off a timber harvesting fee charged to forestry firms in an effort to help the industry survive during the COVID-19 pandemic.

"The government will defer stumpage fees for the next three months to help forest companies with their financial liquidity during the crisis." Says Premier John Horgan. Stumpage is the fee forest operators pay the province to harvest, buy or sell trees from Crown land. The government says the fee deferral leaves eligible companies with about $80 million to pay employees, contractors and other bills. B.C.'s forest industry was struggling prior to the pandemic; hundreds of workers had been laid off and numerous mills had closed in the Interior due to high operating costs and low timber prices. Forests Minister Doug Donaldson says the deferral may help some companies get back to work sooner and could save other firms from shutting down completely.

In Chetwynd both West Fraser and Canfor have dealt with a number of curtailments, forcing workers to lose hours and end up struggling to support their families.

Our firefighters

Courage that can't be extinguished

Most people will flee from a burning building, but firefighters face the blaze head-on. Indeed, there are few professions that require the kind of selfless courage that's displayed by members of the fire service. Plus, many are volunteers, particularly in rural areas.

In addition to putting out fires, firefighters are often the first responders during medical emergencies and at car accidents. As such, they must be trained to perform basic lifesaving interventions and assist paramedics. In some cities, they even carry naloxone to treat opioid overdoses.

Similarly, when firefighters are called to the scene of a car crash, their duties aren't limited to extinguishing an engine fire. Firefighters must assist other emergency personnel to extricate victims from damaged vehicles and clear the wreckage. They may also receive special training to safely rescue people from confined spaces, collapsed buildings and beneath ice.

Firefighters carry out their duties in extreme heat and blinding smoke. They work long shifts, both day and night, and risk their lives. In recent years, many firefighters have even volunteered to help their colleagues in other cities and countries battle volatile wildfires. This is a profession where altruism knows no bounds.

Government creates new COVID-19 temporary layoff period

To ease financial hardship on businesses and to keep employees connected with their jobs during the COVID-19 pandemic, government has extended the temporary layoff period to 16 weeks for COVID-19 related reasons

Chetwynd Chamber looks to the future after Covid Cancellations

CHETWYND – Due to Covid19 breakout, the Chetwynd Chamber of Commerce's 25th Anniversary Trade scheduled for March 27-29, 2020, was cancelled last month. The show is being tentatively rescheduled for mid-September, dependent on what the provincial rules will be on large gatherings by then. Currently, Provincial Health Officer Dr. Bonnie Henry and the province have a ban on large gatherings, festivals and other events. Last week, Dr. Henry said it's unlikely the ban on mass gatherings or gatherings of 50 people or more will be lifted "in the near future." The restriction was put in place to help stop the spread of the novel coronavirus, which has infected at least 1,948 people across the province as of April 27. "These cases, we know, are risky," she said at a press conference. "We know that we've had lots of cases associated, if we look around the world, with large events like concerts, like sporting events, like conferences. So those types of things are not going to happen this summer." "Over the years the Chetwynd Trade Show has jumped over some minor hurdles but never something that would jeopardize the health and safety of our vendors and attendees," Executive Director for the Chetwynd Chamber, Naomi Larsen, said. The Trade Show sees an annual attendance of on average between 2,100 and 2,500 people through the doors each year and features more than 60 vendors, a kid zone area, face painting, and daily entertainment. The postponement of the show created a financial hit to the Chamber of between $15,000 and $18,000 which is the Chamber's biggest revenue generating event of the year. The Chamber's other main source of revenue is annual membership dues. Currently the Chetwynd Chamber of Commerce has a membership of approximately 130 businesses. Those vendors who have booked their booths are able to request a refund if the September time frame does not work for them. Another event that may be on the chopping block is the Chetwynd Chamber's Harvest Festival, also set for mid-September. "Planning is usually going on full force right now, however due to the situation, it's tough to plan an event right now until we know more," Larsen said. "Our board is quite disappointed with the postponements and cancellations, but completely understand the importance of supporting efforts to minimize exposure to the Coronavirus, and that includes cancelling large public events." Larsen added she'd like to express the Chamber's tremendous appreciation and thanks to the many sponsors, participants, and event partners who have been very patient and supportive through this unusual time. "I'm ever optimistic though," she said. "We will begin our planning early for next year's events and look forward to welcoming everyone back in 2021." Other events throughout Chetwynd that have been cancelled for the summer include the Chetwynd International Chainsaw Carving Championship, Chetwynd's Canada Day Celebrations and the Chetwynd Rodeo. Fitness with Elaine Mental Fortitude

These past few months have certainly been challenging for a lot of people! We all face mental challenges as well as day to day changes. When life throws us a curve I can only believe it's to challenge our ability to DEAL! As I sit here pouting about another ultra-marathon being cancelled for this summer (3 in total) I reflect on what is important and what is not. To some people a cancelled run is "no biggy", but to me and thousands of other people it's what keeps us SANE! We all have that one THING that we gravitate to and running is mine. Running is therapy; my place where I can forget all my problems and clear my head!

We are never guaranteed tomorrow next week or next year! So I will pull up my big girl pants get back into my head space, continue my training, and come back full force next year!

The moral of my rant is to NOT stop doing what you love to do! We are being tested in many aspects of life right now; I for one won't let this test get me down. Focus on whatever helps YOU get through YOUR day. If you are told you can't then find an alternative! Where there is a will there is a way! THINK OUTSIDE THE BOX and get it done!

Did you know?

Lobster have clear blood, Most of us are well aware that lobster shells change colour when exposed to heat (like in a pot of boiling water, for example). But the sea creatures' blood is also intriguing. Lobster blood is initially clear and turns blue when it hits oxygen.

Peace River closure begins in June

As part of the Site C project, BC Hydro will be installing two debris management structures across the Peace River in advance of river diversion this fall.

For safety reasons, starting mid-June, a 4 km section of the Peace River near Fort St. John will be permanently closed to boaters.

Portage program: To move boaters around the construction area, a Portage Program for non-motorized boats will operate between the Halfway River boat launch and the Peace Island Park boat launch from June 15 to September 15. Reservations are required seven days in advance of pickup.
