CIVIL JURY TRIALS SUSPENDED, ENSURING TIMELY ACCESS TO JUSTICE DURING COVID-19

Starting on Sept. 28, 2020, following consultation with the Supreme Court of B.C. and key stakeholders, the attorney general is amending the Rules of Civil Court to temporarily suspend all civil jury trials for a period of one year.

This action by the Province is intended to help courts remain safe and minimize the impact of delays caused by the COVID-19 pandemic. Criminal jury trials resumed on Sept. 8, 2020.

Under this temporary suspension, civil jury trials will resume on Oct. 4, 2021, with any trial taking place before this date to be heard by a judge alone. In addition, neither plaintiffs nor defendants will be permitted to adjourn cases to a later date in order to have the matter heard by a jury, unless the court orders otherwise.

This change effectively extends the direction by the chief justice of the Supreme Court of B.C. to cancel civil jury trials up to and including January 1, 2021. Other provinces, including Alberta and Saskatchewan, have also temporarily suspended civil jury trials as a result of COVID-19.

The suspension of civil jury trials will help to minimize any delays arising from the impact of additional safety measures required in courts as a result of COVID-19, such as the need to find alternative locations or rearrange rooms to allow for physical distancing, installing plexiglass barriers and hand wash stations in the courthouse, and carrying out enhanced cleaning and regular health screenings.

One day a man went to the cinema to see a movie, but because of two women loudly chatting together who were sitting in the row in front of him, he was unable to hear the dialogue clearly. He leaned forward and said in a stage whisper,

"Excuse me, ladies, but I can't hear."

"I should hope not," stormed one of the women, "this is a private conversation."

I love the autumn—that melancholy season that suits memories so well. When the trees have lost their leaves, when the sky at sunset still preserves the russet hue that fills with gold the withered grass, it is sweet to watch the final fading of the fires that until recently burnt within you.

*It's the first day of autumn!
A time of hot chocolatey mornings, and toasty marshmallow evenings, and, best of all, leaping into leaves!*

INQUEST SCHEDULED INTO DEATH OF JAMES DANIEL MCINTYRE

The BC Coroners Service has scheduled a public inquest into the death of James Daniel McIntyre beginning on Sept. 28, 2020, at 9:30 a.m. at the Dawson Creek Courthouse located at 1201 103 Ave. The death of McIntyre, 48, was reported to the BC Coroners Service on July 16, 2015, following a police altercation in Dawson Creek.

Under Section 18(2) of the Coroners Act, inquests are mandatory for any deaths that occur while a person was detained by or in the custody of a peace officer.

Michael Egilson, presiding coroner, and a jury will hear evidence from witnesses under oath to determine the facts surrounding this death. The jury will have the opportunity to make recommendations aimed at preventing deaths under similar circumstances. A jury must not make any finding of legal responsibility or express any conclusion of law.

An inquest is a formal process that allows for public presentation of evidence relating to a death. The jury will certify the identity of the deceased and how, where, when and by what means death occurred. The BC Coroners Service looks to gather the facts surrounding why a death took place. It is not a fault-finding agency. It provides an independent service to the family, community, government agencies and other organizations.

Note that during the COVID-19 pandemic, in compliance with physical and social distancing requirements set out by the provincial health officer, the BC Coroners Service was required to postpone several inquests. The BC Coroners Service is in the process of rescheduling those inquests and will announce confirmed dates, times and locations once those confirmed details are known.

REFRAMING OUR RELATIONSHIP TO THE LAND WITH KIT FAST

By Haley Bassett, September 17th 2020

Haley Bassett writes a weekly arts column as part of her position with the Dawson Creek Art Gallery, where she covers regional arts news.

For this week's edition, I sat down with interdisciplinary artist and curator Kit Fast to learn more about his ongoing project earthwork and his video essay standing waves: the making of each moment, which is featured in this year's Wild Words North Festival. WWN is hosting virtual events now until September 27th. You can find fast's video now on the festival website and Youtube page.

In the image above we see a curious and roughly carved line on a hunk of dried clay next to a waterbody. It is a perplexing visual that opens itself up to many questions: Why was this pattern carved? What does it represent? Who placed it there and why? This sort of thought provocation is exactly what the artist, Kit Fast, intended with his multimedia project earthwork. It is the result of his visits to Saskatoon Creek, between Rolla and Dawson Creek, for the past three years, which he has documented or marked in various ways.

This photograph of a meander line scraped into clay is one of many culminations of years of research, experimentation and introspection. In this body of work, Fast has incorporated photography, ceramics, sculpture, essays and video to explore the breadth of questions he encountered on his visits, all of which stemmed from one simple inquiry: what does it mean to have a meaningful relationship with the land?

This is a fraught topic that demands consideration of one's heritage, community, industry, the colonial history of Canada, and consequently, one's family history. Himself a settler with a hazy, generally western European, Mennonite, Pennsylvania Dutch, as well as Ukrainian ancestry, Kit Fast acknowledges that his residing in Dawson Creek today is the result of a long chain of displacement and colonization that problematizes his relationship with Treaty 8. Earthwork is his way of reconciling with that history, by initiating a dialogue between himself and the land he dwells on.

A project on the scale of earthwork can only be properly executed through a number of mediums, which Fast has deftly combined in his video essay standing waves: the making of each moment. The artwork includes a reading of an original essay paired with video and images of Saskatoon Creek, which the artist has recorded with an appreciation that can only be achieved through a careful, sustained and respectful presence on the land. The muddy water from surrounding clay banks and rocky shores are presented with a dignity that is not often afforded to one of the thousands of seemingly nondescript creeks in Treaty 8. Kit Fast uses his lens to re-frame the land as an active, living, changing subject, rather than a static object. His writing is both descriptive and layered with multiple understandings of the land, blending poetry, prose and scientific terminology. Through working on this project, Fast has come to appreciate the land as the foundation of all things, where the interconnectedness of all beings and actions is discoverable to those who are willing and patient enough to experience it. He hopes his audience will share his vision and likewise interrogate their own place on this land.

Do you have an artistic endeavour you would like to promote? Or a topic you would like to know more about? I would love to hear from you! Please email me at programs@dcartgallery.ca.

Health For Your Home

by Linda Franklin

There are as many ways to eat as there are people on planet earth! How we eat directly affects our health; mentally and physically.

A well-balanced plant-based diet leaves a smaller greenhouse gas footprint and has fewer negative side-effects healthwise.

Think of a healthy diet as a four-layered pyramid. At the top is the tiny triangle labeled fats: it is best not to cook with oil—keep it cool, add it later.

This column is designed to address economical discoveries that will affect your health in a positive way.
THE FIRST WEEK IN THE SERIES IS:

Nutrition

On the second level: legumes, beans and nuts; 2-3 servings per day. The third layer: Grains and seeds; 6-9 servings of whole grains per day, limiting white flour products. Fourth and final layer: Fruits and vegetables; 7-10 servings a day, fresh/raw, a rainbow of health!

Sugar is not food. Minimize salt (use Celtic or Himalayan). Make breakfast the largest meal. Choose to eat for health, strength, energy, and longevity!

Are ye the ghosts of fallen leaves, O flakes of snow, for which, through naked trees, the winds a-mourning go?
