DAWSON CREEK OFFICER INVOLVED IN FATAL SHOOTING CLEARED BY THE IIO

The Independent Investigations Office has cleared a Dawson Creek police officer involved in a fatal shooting last year. In a report released November 16, the IIO has stated that no charges will be brought forward in the case.

The incident occurred on July 16th of 2015 when Dawson Creek RCMP responded to a report of a disturbance at a BC Hydro Site-C Dam public information session. Allegedly, a male suspect was damaging property and disrupting the meeting.

When police arrived, they found a man outside of the Stonebridge Hotel wearing a mask with one hand behind his back.

RCMP members directed the man to show his hand but he did not obey. Officers realized the man was holding an initially unopened switchblade.

Witnesses says the man in the mask then opened the blade and started moving towards the police. Authorities asked the man to drop the knife and pepper spray was used, but had no effect on the suspect. The man continued to not comply and was shot by an officer. He did not survive his injuries and was pronounced dead at a hospital.

The IIO was called in that same night and had initially reported that the individual who caused the disturbance at the event came in contact with the police and was shot.

The report then went on to say it became evident that the man wearing the mask was not the subject of the original complaint.

BC Coroner Services later identified the male fatally shot as 48 year old Dawson Creek resident, James Daniel McIntyre.

November comes
And November goes,
With the last red berries
And the first white snows.
With night coming early,
And dawn coming late,
And ice in the bucket
And frost by the gate.
The fires burn
And the kettles sing,
And earth sinks to rest
Until next spring.

ALCOHOL MAY BE ON THE MENU FOR MORE BUSINESSES IN B.C.

Fancy a shave and scotch? How about a mani-pedi-champagne? New policy changes from the Province will allow all types of B.C. businesses to apply for a liquor licence, opening up possibilities for new revenue streams and diversified business services.

Effective Jan. 23, 2017, businesses like barber shops, salons, spas, cooking schools, art galleries and book stores will be able to apply for a liquor licence to diversify their business model and serve liquor to customers. All types of businesses will be able to apply for a liquor primary licence, so long as they do not operate from a motor vehicle or target minors. This change will provide flexibility for businesses to expand and offer new services to their patrons, while creating new opportunities for manufacturers such as craft breweries and wineries to sell their product, and increase consumer choice for British Columbians.

To ensure that public health and safety remains a top priority, businesses will have to go through the same licensing processes as other establishments, including a requirement that all staff serving liquor are 'Serving-It-Right' certified. These businesses will also be subject to the same regulatory compliance measures as all licensees. The requirement that businesses applying for a liquor primary licence must also abide by their local government's or First Nations' liquor licensing criteria will remain unchanged.

The new policy builds on recent changes announced by the Province that allow for-profit businesses to apply for Special Event Permits, which were previously reserved for individuals and not-for-profit organizations.

Quick Facts:

- B.C.'s Liquor Policy Review makes 73 common-sense recommendations to change B.C.'s liquor laws so that they reflect current lifestyles, encourage the growth of small businesses and the province's economy, address calls for consumer convenience and continue to safeguard health and public safety.
- This change will implement recommendation 38 of the Liquor Policy Review.
- To date, 48 of the 73 Liquor Policy Review recommendations have been implemented. Work to continue implementing additional recommendations is ongoing.
- Over one-quarter of the Liquor Policy Review recommendations currently being implemented by the Province focus on health, safety and social responsibility.
