Children's YouTube Videos Showing Inappropriate Content

We all know that there is reason to be cautious about what your child could be viewing on YouTube, well now there is reason for real concern after several videos have been removed for showing tips and tricks to commit suicide.

These YouTube channels geared towards children, often showing cartoon, gaming content or related have these snips of other videos slipped in between or sometimes right in the video itself.

YouTube has seen a lot of backlash for many years about improving safety on its Kids App. In November of 2017 the company set out new guidelines including faster enforcement of blocking inappropriate comments. There were also parental control features added to help curate what your child is viewing. According to YouTube's spokesperson, the Google-owned platform relies on both user flagging and smart detection technology to flag content that violates its policies. Meaning it relies on parents to view and flag inappropriate videos. There is no automatic solution other than being present and paying attention to the videos your child is viewing.

One mom has helped eliminate some of these channels and videos, she says "My research has led me into a horrifying world where people create cartoons glorifying dangerous topics and scenarios such as self-harm, suicide, sexual exploitation, trafficking, domestic violence, sexual abuse, and gun violence which includes a simulated school shooting. All of these videos were found on YouTube Kids, a platform that advertises itself to be a safe place for children 8 years old and under". With YouTube being so hard to police and regulate the videos available to young children, as parents we have to be cautious and review the content our children are being exposed to. Because as much as there are some quality programs and shows on YouTube, there are also a lot of sick people out there looking to harm kids. Always be aware of what your kids are watching and try to involve yourself.

Memorial Announcement for Randy Major

Randy Elmer Francis Major, age 61, passed away at his home in Maricopa, Arizona on Saturday, February 16, 2019.

Randy was born on May 8, 1957 in Dawson Creek, Bc, to Elmer and Joan Major (nee Adey). Randy's father and mother moved the family to Courtenay, BC on Vancouver Island in 1962.

Randy spent most of his working years in the construction industry. In his latter years, he became a truck driver. He drove over the road for a time before turning to driving for a local gravel company.

Randy had moved many times in his life and lived in many different areas of Canada and the U.S. He seemed to have found his place in Maricopa and lived there for over 20 years before his passing.

Randy was preceded in death by his father, mother, and two nephews David Bowes and Warren Schlamp. He is survived by his partner Vivian Jones, and his 5 children; Jason Hughes, Christina Sapara (Travis), Ryan Major (Amanda), Corey Major and Kyle Reynolds. Also his 7 grandchildren, Step Mother Sylvia Major, sisters; Vicki Major (Wayne), Kathy McQueen (Don), Patty Wagoner (Scott), 4 brothers; Rob Major (Tracy), Rod Weldon (Destiny), Chris Weldon (Cara), Derek Major (Kate), and many, many nieces and nephews.

Family and friend are invited to attend a memorial/Celebration of Life for Randy at Villas by Mary T at 1576 E Cottonwood Lane, Casa Grande, AZ 85122 on March 22nd at 2:00p.m

"And think of him as living in the hearts of those he touched...
For nothing loved is ever lost and he was loved so much"

Doing your taxes? Avoid these common pitfalls

Tax season is a headache for many of us, but it doesn't have to be. With a bit of planning and learning, you can file your return on time without much of a hassle. To stay on top of your taxes and avoid paying unnecessary fees and penalties, check out these common pitfalls:

Not visiting a pro. You don't need to see an accountant to file your taxes, but if you encounter a deal that seems too good to be true, don't be afraid to seek independent advice from a reputable tax professional. Ask questions or enquire further before submitting your return.

Falling prey to a promoter. Tax scheme promoters encourage or sell plans that seek to break or bend the rules of Canadian tax laws. They deliberately make false statements to assist their clients in tax cheating, all the while obtaining a financial benefit. But agreeing to these schemes can end up making you pay more in taxes or lead to penalties and even jail time.

Signing up for false claims. Stay away from tax preparers who offer to use false tax claims such as charitable donations, child care expense claims, or even business expenses or losses. There are serious consequences that just aren't worth the risk.

Not getting a second opinion. Tax scheme promoters are often personable, charming and professional. But they will discourage you from double checking what they tell you with the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) or someone else. Get that second opinion anyway, especially if you are feeling pressured.

Not disclosing past errors. The CRA encourages taxpayers who willingly participated in a past tax scheme to come forward and correct their affairs through the Voluntary Disclosures Program. Through it, you will only have to pay any taxes owing plus interest in part or in full, and would be eligible for relief from prosecution and, in some cases, from penalties.
