

When Do You Consult Your Workers?

When identifying hazards?

When assessing risks to health and safety?

When making decisions about ways to eliminate or minimise those risks

When proposing changes that may affect the health and safety of workers?

When making decisions about the adequacy of facilities for the welfare of workers?

When making decisions about procedures for:

- consulting with workers?

- resolving workplace health and safety issues?

- monitoring the health of workers?

- monitoring workplace conditions?

- providing information and training for workers?

A safe and healthy workplace is easier to achieve when workers are consulted and involved. And the WHS Act (section 49) says workers must be consulted. Also see page 5 of Code of Practice: How to Manage Work Health and Safety Risks. Managers and Supervisors have an important part to play in achieving every part of this checklist.