Mosqoy Peruvian Textiles is a community-based textile revitalization initiative that supports Indigenous Quechua weaving cooperatives.

The textile tradition is an integral part of Quechua culture, for the Andean peoples of the Peruvian Andes. For centuries, women have perfected the process of hand-spinning alpaca and sheep fibres; dyeing their yarn using 100% natural plant and insect dyes from the region; and weaving beautiful symbols into their textiles.

Each textile not only tells a story but empowers women through financial independence.

At Mosqoy, we believe in providing a hand-up, not a hand-out. That’s why we uphold the autonomy of our partnering weaving cooperatives, by working with them on their own terms as equal partners. Mosqoy pays Quechua weavers wages that reflect the true labour, time, skills, and knowledge required to make their textiles.

We offer products that tell stories, connect generations of Indigenous peoples, and empower communities of women across the Cusco region.
Our traditional line is a celebration of Indigenous Quechua culture. It features products that best showcase these masterpieces, and their natural dyes and traditional symbols.

This line includes traditional pieces, passed down from generation to generation, which are often used for ceremonial or community purposes.

From start to finish, the products in this line are designed and crafted by Quechua weavers in the Andean mountains of Peru.

The Mosqoy Line is the outcome of our long-term, values-driven partnerships with Quechua communities across the Cusco region. The items are practical and innovative for modern life, while also paying homage to the Quechua textile tradition.

Mosqoy designs the pieces in this line, while our partnering artisans weave the textiles. Local seamstresses then put the finishing touches together to turn the design into a final product. To do so, many steps are involved in the process, including prototyping, capacity-building, and training. Each textile is a true collaborative and innovative journey.

Millma, our Mosqoy Fibres Line, is one-of-a-kind. It features organic alpaca and baby-alpaca yarn that is hand-sheared and hand-spun by women in the high-altitude Andean community of Cancha Cancha.

All of our yarn is undyed, featuring 5 different natural alpaca colour selections.

We offer one-ply and two-ply yarn of varying thicknesses (from 250 yards/lbs to 1300 yards/lbs), for all weavers’ and knitters’ needs. Our two-ply yarn comes in both one-colour and two-colour combinations. All of our balls of yarn are 240-250 grams.

Please inquire for more information about our Millma colour and weight options.
OUR MOTTO

GLOBAL SUSTAINABILITY THROUGH LOCAL RESILIENCE

Fair-trade principles are behind every item we make. When you buy a scarf, bracelet, or pillowcase from Mosqoy, you are directly contributing to the sustainable development of Indigenous Quechua communities.

Mosqoy Peruvian Textiles is built on a community-based profit model and centered around the voiced needs of our partnering communities. The profit from each textile supports socioeconomic development projects and post-secondary educational scholarships.

OUR WEavers

Our logo - the “q’ente” or hummingbird - symbolizes rebirth for new life. It’s also linked to reciprocity, love, and nurturing. Our ties to the Cusco region run deep; with each of our partnering communities, we exchange stories, support, and knowledge.

We work with over 70 weavers in some of the most remote communities of the Sacred Valley and Mapacho River Valley, supporting artesanal cooperatives in Amaru, Cancha Cancha, Huaran, Pitukiska, and Parobamba.

In collaboration with Mosqoy, each of these cooperatives are actively working to revitalize the Quechua textile tradition, passing down their knowledge to the next generation. We nurture both the art and business of the textile, so that women can prioritize an autonomous and sustainable future for their children.
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

We respectfully acknowledge the communities and culture of the Quechua peoples, on whose land we are privileged to work, in the Peruvian Andes. The products featured in this catalogue are handmade by weavers in Cancha Cancha, Parobamba, Pitukiska, Huaran, and Amaru.
