

Group fusing information

Alfatronix recommend that every product is individually fused. However, for the installation of products in parallel it may be possible to have a 'group' fusing arrangement.

The fuse value, circuit design, installation procedure and risk factors should be properly assessed by the installer according to the design requirements of the installation.