

FOCUS & EXPERTISE

LEADERSHIP COACHING:

We are all leaders, and we are always leading – our lives, ourselves, others, teams, entire organisations. We are responsible for ourselves and for our impact. Based on these notions, Thomas helps clients to clarify the impact they have, and to expand their own ability and resources to lead with intention. Raised in East Germany, Thomas stepped into his own leadership early on to reinvent his life once the Berlin wall was torn down. In his coaching he combines a skill for sharp analysis and clear communication with a unique ability to create an atmosphere of trust and openness. His clients gain increased clarity, freedom of action and the courage to unleash their full personal potential.

TEAM DEVELOPMENT:

Effective teams have members who trust each other, are able to engage in conflict, commit to decisions and hold each other accountable. From his ten years as a manager of international project teams in business and research environments, Thomas personally knows how it is to get stuck in conflict – be it, for example, due to complex settings in a matrix organisation or contradictory demands from stakeholders. He creates a safe environment for his clients to draw on their untapped resources and to explore any issues that might hold them back. By focusing on simplicity and clarity, Thomas helps them to develop and pursue innovative strategies of change, insisting on commitment to action and accountability.

MEETINGS AND SPECIAL EVENTS:

Thomas provides support for workshops at which participants attempt to resolve an issue or conflict, to forge a joint position or to craft a common solution. He has lead over 100 workshops involving high-level stakeholders, ranging from industrialists and policy makers to world-class physicists. In many stand-off situations Thomas' leadership helped to bring participants to align. He moderates such events with great sensitivity to both individual positions and group dynamics. Thomas' inclusive approach to facilitation activates and engages participants in a playful manner, ensuring that all voices are heard and considered and that participants move their organisations forward by implementing novel solutions.

SOFTSKILL TRAINING:

Thomas trains high-potential individuals in specific skills required to be an effective innovation leader. The topics include time and project management, communication and presentation with impact, foresight, as well as design thinking. In his trainings he combines a variety of proven methods based on techniques of experiential learning and co-creation. A common characteristic of his training is for participants to acquire the mind-set of an innovator and the behaviour required to drive innovation in any context. Participants will be challenged and constantly go back and forth between theoretical input, the practical application of new techniques and a reflection about the impact they can create.
