8. How did Rhoda react?

Answer: She was so overjoyed by Peter’s release that she forgot to open the gate for him and ran to tell the others that their prayers had been answered.

9. Do you think these Christians doubted their prayer for Peter could be answered in this way?

Answer: They certainly should not have doubted, since God had rescued Peter before, but still such a thing is astonishing.

10. Were the soldiers to blame for Peter’s release? What was to happen to them anyway?

Answer: Although the soldiers could not have stopped God’s messenger from releasing Peter, Herod planned to have them killed.

11. Why did the people of Tyre and Sidon need Herod’s favor?

Answer: Herod’s country fed them.

12. How did they attempt to impress Herod and win his favor?

Answer: They treated him like a deity and gushed over his oration.

13. Why did the angel strike Herod dead?

Answer: He accepted this adoration that should have been reserved for Jehovah alone.

14. Whom did Barnabas and Saul enlist as a fellow-laborer?

Answer: John Mark.

The Acts of the Apostles
Authorship: Luke, A.D. 63

The book is addressed to Theophilus, as Luke had also addressed his gospel account. Theophilus means “lover of God” in Greek and may, therefore, refer to an anonymous individual or someone who actually bore that good name. Effectively, the book is addressed to all of every age who love Jehovah and seek to understand the scheme of redemption and the pattern for the New Testament church.

The author is determined to be the beloved physician, Luke, one of Paul’s traveling companions (Acts 16:10, 2 Tim. 4:11). Luke’s scientific and analytical nature and education bring to bear a detailed study of every aspect of this history.

The purpose of this epistle is to complete a two volume historical set on the life of Christ and the church he built. Luke’s gospel closes with an emphasis on Christ’s ascension; Acts opens with an account of this event and its effect on the apostles.

At a loss as to what they should do now, two heavenly men and the Holy Spirit map out their first steps. The apostles replenish their number and then begin taking the urgent gospel message to a dying world, beginning on Pentecost in Jerusalem.

This book is actually some of the acts of some of the apostles. The greater number of them was not with Luke and so their work is more obscure to us. Peter is the main character in the first twelve chapters, but the remarkable conversion of former persecutor Saul of Tarsus makes him the leading man thereafter.

Acts shows us the scheme of redemption at work as the preached gospel converts men to Jesus. Numerous conversion accounts are recorded, creating a pattern for preaching and obedience that has lasted ever since.

The book is also valuable in that explains the nature, organization, work and worship of the church to which we claim to be a part.

The Acts of the Apostles appears to be a sequel to Luke’s gospel account and picks up at the point of Christ’s ascension back into heaven as the apostles and disciples wait for guidance concerning what to do next.

As promised, the Holy Spirit arrives to remind them of Christ’s doctrine and to lead them into further truth. Immediately, redemption through the blood of the savior becomes the overriding theme of the book and the church’s mission. Throughout the Acts of the Apostles, audiences as small as one and as large as many thousands are instructed to believe the truth about Jesus, turn from their sins, confess their faith publicly and courageously, and then be baptized for the remission of sins. The baptism of the Holy Spirit occurs just twice, once upon Jews (the apostles in Acts 2) and then upon Gentiles (Cornelius’s household in Acts 10), fulfilling Joel’s prophecy and making the gift of the Holy Spirit (his presence and grace) possible for all of mankind.

The word “witness” is used at least 30 times in the book, showing that the early church used the eyewitness testimony of the apostles and others to assert that this same Jesus was resurrected from the dead and is the savior of the world. Eschewing a social or recreational gospel, the various congregations appointed their own overseers and attended to a spiritual mission centered around the forgiveness of sins.

Our English word “martyr” comes from the same root as witness and the Acts shows how often professing Christ could bring about persecution and even martyrdom. Yet this willingness to die for one’s beliefs is surely also good reason for heathen and Jewish audiences to consider the faith more seriously – if some are willing to give their lives for it, there must be something to it. If we are failing to take risks for our faith, we should not be surprised if the lost understand that our beliefs really don’t mean that much to us.

The governing and practice of the early church becomes an obvious pattern. Outside of Jerusalem where the apostles were, local congregations appointed overseers (known variously as elders, pastors, bishops and presbyters) and deacons (or servants) and labored with evangelists and other teachers. Worship consisted of prayers, singing, the Lord’s Supper and a monetary contribution for needy saints. No pope was selected and no denomination was established; they were simply churches of Christ.

Out of this book springs forth a seminal character in church history. Paul emerges from among the fiercest persecutors of the church to becomes its most tireless proponent, abandoning his influence and prosperity within Judaism to embrace Christ and risk his life preaching him. His efforts take him around the known world and put him in extremely dangerous predicaments, but as the book concludes he is still going strong. His dedication is an example for all those who wear the same blessed name of Christ.

10. What is Barnabas’s record for encouraging Christians?

11. (11:25-26) Mormonism holds that disciples were called Christians as early as 73 B.C. (Alma 46:13-15). What does the Bible say?

They prayed.

7. (1:15-26) Was there scriptural authority for Peter to push for someone to succeed this apostle in his office? Where is it? Is there any authority for a successor to the other offices or even this one, once it was filled this time?

Peter appealed to the prophecy of Psalm 109:8 as authority for succession to the twelfth office once Judas vacated it. There is no apostolic succession save for this example.

8. Of exactly what were the apostles to testify? Could someone who has not seen the risen Christ qualify as such a witness?

Yes, the were silenced and confessed that “God has also granted to the Gentiles repentance to life.”
7. Of what event did Peter think, upon witnessing the baptism of the Holy Spirit here?

Answer: He accused these Jews of killing the innocent son of God, their Messiah. He tells them to repent and be baptized.

Answer: He was full of grace and power, of God’s favor and the power to preach about it even under great threat to his own life.

8. Could they refute his arguments for the gospel? What tactic did they employ in their failure?

Answer: When they could not resist his arguments, they resorted to hiring false witnesses to accuse him of blasphemy.

9. How did Stephen appear to them?

Answer: He had the face of an angel, which must have made them a little uncomfortable as they plotted to murder him.
