PREDICTING MARITAL HAPPINESS

Marital Success or failure cannot be absolutely predicted. However, sufficient progress has been made in research in the field of marriage and family life that one can be reasonably sure about his proposed marriage. Strength and weakness can be detected at the outset and evaluated if the couple is willing to take time for study, testing, and counseling. The following material will help you make a start in discovering important matters concerning your marriage.

I. WHY PEOPLE MARRY

(Please circle the number that best describes your feelings in each)

1 – Important
2 – Rather Important
3 – Of Little Importance
4 – Not a Consideration

1 2 3 4  a) The Need for Companionship. After one has left his family he feels the need of establishing a home of his own in which there will be sharing of thought, play, work, and relationships of love.

1 2 3 4  b) Home Life and Children. One wants a home in which children will be born and reared, and where a community of love can be established.

1 2 3 4  c) Economic Reasons. A girl may want financial security in life and being married will help her attain this. A man is more desirable to an employer and may be advanced more rapidly if he is married.

1 2 3 4  d) Social Status. Married life increases one's social status in the community and makes him more acceptable.

1 2 3 4  e) Escape. Some marry to escape an unhappy situation: in home life; an unfortunate romance, a failure in school, a failure in a job, etc.

1 2 3 4  f) Social Expectancy. There may be a feeling that single life is not socially acceptable in your community. Parents may want you to be married.
g) Conquest and Achievement. The prospective mate is desired by many others and getting him or her is quite a feather in one's cap.

h) Physical Attraction.

i) Infatuation.

II. AREAS THAT MAINLY AFFECT MARITAL HAPPINESS

27. (Both) Will parents try to interfere or dominate our lives, or give us the amount of freedom and independence we need for our future happiness?
PREDICTING MARITAL HAPPINESS (#2)

Love is one of the key concepts in marriage. However, this term carries with it several ideas or understandings. The Greeks had different words to denote these ideas. They made distinctions between: (1) Love of family members, (2) Physical attraction, (3) Close friendships, and (4) The highest type of love which the New Testament attributes to God and His love for lost mankind. The following is an attempt to help evaluate the type of love you have for one another.

I. A LOOK AT LOVE IN MARRIAGE
(Please circle the number that best describes your feeling)

1 – Definitely yes.
2 – I believe so.
3 – Not sure.
4 – Probably not.
5 – Definitely no.

1 2 3 4 5  a) Do you find your love motivating you to make your loved one happy rather than leading you to seek your own happiness and satisfaction?

1 2 3 4 5  b) Do you think of all the things you are planning in terms of "we" rather than just what you want? Do you feel you want to marry for "partnership?"

1 2 3 4 5  c) Do you feel restful and at ease when you are together rather than being under a strain?

1 2 3 4 5  d) Can you talk together for hours about all sorts of things without getting bored?

1 2 3 4 5  e) Is there a sense of satisfaction in just knowing the other one is close by even though you may not be entertaining each other?

1 2 3 4 5  f) Do you enjoy working together on a common project?

1 2 3 4 5  g) Can you get a real sense of satisfaction out of discussing, even arguing, about something on which you differ?
h) When you are in the company of someone of the opposite sex, do you tend to remember the person you say you love, and feel a sense of nearness to him (her)?

i) Is there a strong physical attraction to the loved one?

j) Do you admire the person for what (he, she) is and what has been accomplished in life?

k) Are you proud to be seen with (him, her) in public and by your friends or relatives?

l) Do you enjoy being together even when you are not expressing love in a physical way?

m) Do you believe your love could weather the storms of financial distress, sickness and serious misunderstanding?

n) Do you share together devotion to common causes, goals and religious beliefs?

o) Is (he, she) eager to tell you the experiences of the day and to get your opinion on (his, her) plans and problems?

p) Is (he, she) always striving to put you in a favorable light when you are out among friends? Does (he, she) get a kick out of "showing you off"?

q) Has your love grown gradually to its present state?

r) Is there a certain aspect of your love for this other person which is beyond your ability to describe or completely understand?

s) Do you feel the person you love will meet your needs twenty-five years from now as much as or more than now? In other words, will your love stand the test of time?

t) Do you see in this person the qualities you want in your children?
1 2 3 4 5 u) Do you love each other with equal intensity and are you sure your love is not one-sided?

1 2 3 4 5 v) Is your love for the other person essentially the same as the other person's love for you? (No feeling that it is of a very different sort?)

1 2 3 4 5 w) Is your present love more satisfying than any feeling you have had before in a relationship with the opposite sex?

1 2 3 4 5 x) Is your love for the other person unselfish and free from the idea that you may be using (him, her) in a selfish way?

1 2 3 4 5 y) When you are with the other person, do you experience feelings of elation, energy, completeness, fulfillment? Does your relationship make you a better person?

1 2 3 4 5 z) Are there times when in the presence of the other person you feel reverent as if you were in the presence of something sacred, something to which you want to give yourself, devote yourself, cherish and protect always?

II. YOUR PERSONAL HAPPINESS SCORE

No man can live a satisfactory life without goals toward which he strives. But goals differ in value. A happy marriage can come when two people strive toward common goals and life satisfactions. When one finds his happiness in a way quite different from another, their paths will eventually lead them apart. When the goals and values are cherished in common and are of the highest type, lives will grow together. Satisfactions that come when two people move toward a common goal are gratifying experiences. Be perfectly frank in rating yourselves and face the results honestly.

(Circle the number that describes the relation of this condition to your personal happiness)

1 2 3 4 5  q) Making a happy home for your life partner.
1 2 3 4 5  r) Cultivating common friendships.

III. YOUR PHILOSOPHY OF LIFE

The person you want as your friend is one who is basically happy and positive in attitude. The same should be true in your selection of a marriage partner. Ralph Waldo Emerson put it well, "The best part of health is a fine disposition. Nothing will supply the want of sunshine to peaches. Whenever you are sincerely pleased you are nourished. The joy of spirit indicates its strength. All healthy things are sweet tempered." It is the quality of health that is in "sweet temper," positive outlook, ability to be objective, and a courageous faith that one should try to develop in himself and look for in the person he marries. The statements in this section will help you understand and appreciate each other in this respect, and through a greater knowledge of yourselves, should help you in the adventure of living together.

YES  NO

____  ____  1) I believe that everything will work out all right in the end.
____  ____  2) When I am in trouble I pray for strength and guidance.
____  ____  3) I find the movies a real source of release when I am worried or tense.
YES  NO

4) When I have a problem I seek counsel from one who is capable.

5) I find great peace in listening to beautiful music.

6) When I get the blues I go out and work hard and try to forget it.

7) Everything that happens in life is God's will and we should be resigned to it.

8) I find that a good cry helps me frequently.

9) When trouble arises I am not easily disturbed.

10) When I disagree with a friend I won't argue.

11) I believe that the chief purpose of life is to find God's will for myself and for society.

12) Thoughts about heaven help me in this life.

13) There are days when I feel very happy and again there are days when I feel very blue.

14) When I get a tough break I believe it is best to grin and bear it.

15) I fail to understand why there should be sorrow and evil in the world.

16) Sometimes I become angry and feel like throwing things.

17) I believe in doing good even for those who don't like me.

18) I am generally happy no matter what happens.

19) Life isn't important and shouldn't be regarded too seriously.

20) I am very confused and don't know what to believe.

21) I feel that most people can be trusted and will try to do right.

22) The prospects for the future are very discouraging.

23) What you believe is important to living.

24) Being affectionate in married life is being sentimental.

25) My philosophy could be expressed in "Eat, Drink, and be Merry for tomorrow you may die."

26) It is very difficult to find a real friend.

27) It is wonderful to be living in such exciting times as these.

28) Few people really love their fellowmen.

29) Attending church gives me a lift.

30) In this world it is every man for himself.

31) I find myself worrying about my problems.

32) Sometimes I feel shy and inferior.

33) I can be optimistic even when those around me are depressed.

34) I avoid getting help or encouragement from others.

35) I experience keen pleasure by doing things for other people.

36) The Golden Rule is a good principle by which to live.
PREDICTING MARITAL HAPPINESS (#3)

People marry for many reasons. Possibly the most important reason is that one has found a person who will be a true and loving companion through the years. This feeling of mutuality which endures and binds marriage partners together comes from a variety of qualities each brings to the marriage. Before marriage it is helpful to explore these areas with your prospective husband or wife. This will help you to know and understand each other better. And an appreciation of your differences and similarities will aid you in making adjustments and living together harmoniously as life companions.

I. TASTES AND OPINIONS

No two people will agree perfectly in this area, but a difference of opinion adds zest to a friendship. The ability to differ and be friends, to argue constructively on an issue is a definite sign of maturity. However, it is helpful to learn to appreciate the other person's points of view and the reasons that he holds them. By so doing, people find a deep harmony. There is also great delight in finding that the other person thinks the way you do and enjoys doing some things exactly as you do. It is hoped that these experiences will be had while you work with this material in this section. The points that follow will help to show the likenesses and the differences. Where the differences are great they will call for growth toward better understanding and a common mind.

(Please circle the number that best describes your feeling)

1 2 3 4 5  A) I believe that the Republican party is more nearly right than the Democratic party.
1 2 3 4 5  B) When reading a newspaper I am more apt to read the comic strips, sport section or society page before reading the front page articles or the editorials.
1 2 3 4 5  C) I believe in buying only the best quality clothes.
1 2 3 4 5  D) I believe in "keeping up with the Joneses."
1 2 3 4 5  E) One should try to be acquainted with all his neighbors.
1 2 3 4 5  F) I like to go out of my way to help others and to make friends.
II. HOBBIES AND LEISURE TIME ACTIVITIES

Someone has estimated that every couple, to have a good marriage, should have six or more interests in common. Couples with less than six are apt to find difficulties in enjoying their leisure time together. A great amount of marital happiness comes from cooperative ventures in work and play. Tension and fatigue are relieved to a considerable extent. A hike in the woods, a game of tennis, a good play or concert, a project for church or community enjoyed together can contribute much to people by way of making minds and attitudes more healthy and bodies more vigorous. Before marriage, two people who already have interests in common can develop still more. Use this section to survey the present situation and to start on the road of development toward more common interests and activities.

YOUR LISTENING, READING AND VIEWING PLEASURE

This section should prove interesting since radio and television seem to play such an important part in present day life. The reading and discussion of books or articles in current periodicals is always a pleasant experience. Perhaps tastes can grow together here with proper though and planning. And certainly if one wants to listen to a symphony concert while the other prefers Country music, this ought to be known and an adjustment made ahead of time.
