1 AND 2 CHRONICLES

INTRODUCTION
The books of 1 and 2 Chronicles cover the same period of Jewish history described in 2 Samuel through 2 Kings, though from a different perspective. While the books of Kings relate the history of Israel from the standpoint of captivity in Babylon, Chronicles presents the history of the Jews from the postexilic standpoint of those who have returned from captivity to the Land of Promise.

Like the books of Samuel and Kings, 1 and 2 Chronicles were originally a single continuous work. The two books were first separated by the translators of the Septuagint (Greek Old Testament). The name “Chronicles” comes from Jerome in his Latin Vulgate Bible (A.D. 385–405): Chronicorum Liber. He meant this title in the sense of “The Chronicles of the Whole of Sacred History.”

AUTHOR
Although the author and date are not stated in the text, the Jewish tradition that Chronicles was penned by Ezra may be correct. Nevertheless, it is customary to speak of the author simply as “the chronicler.” Some believe Chronicles, Ezra, and Nehemiah had the same author; the final verses of Chronicles (2 Chr. 36:22, 23) are repeated in Ezra 1:1–3.

DATE
Internal evidence indicates that the Chronicles were probably composed sometime in the fifth century B.C. A postexilic date is underscored by the mention of the six generations following Zerubbabel (1 Chr. 3:17–21) and of the Persian coins known as “darics” (1 Chr. 29:7).

The books of Chronicles cover a wider space of time than any other work in Scripture. The genealogies and narrative of 1 Chronicles span the period from Adam to the end of the life of David. Second Chronicles recounts the downfall of the Davidic dynasty from Solomon to the Exile.

THEMES AND LITERARY STRUCTURE
The Chronicles were written to the returned remnant who were rebuilding Jerusalem following their seventy-year Babylonian captivity. Because the returning exiles were originally from Judah, the religious and national heritage and history of the Southern kingdom (Judah) is presented by showing its unbroken connection with the patriarchal beginnings.

Chronicles is written from a priestly perspective. The primary historical theme centers around the priestly worship of Judah, from the time of Saul until the return of the Jewish nation to the land following the decree of Cyrus (538 B.C.). This religious history depicts the faithfulness and promises of God to His people, the power of the Word of God, and the central role of worship in the lives of God’s people.

The temple in Jerusalem is the major unifying theme of 1 and 2 Chronicles. Much of the material found in Samuel and Kings is omitted from Chronicles because it does not develop this theme. For example, the kings of the northern kingdom are left out because of their rejection of temple worship at Jerusalem, while prominence is given to the reigns of Judah’s temple restorers (Asa, Jehoshaphat, Joash, Hezekiah, and Josiah). The temple symbolizes God’s presence among His people and reminds them of their high calling. It provides the spiritual link between their past and future.
The line and dynasty of David, recipient of the promises of the Davidic Covenant (1 Chr. 17:3–15), is important to Chronicles. The genealogies of 1 Chronicles 1–9 place a disproportionate emphasis on the tribes of Judah and Benjamin because Chronicles is not concerned with the Northern Kingdom but with the Southern Kingdom and the Davidic dynasty. They demonstrate God’s keeping of His covenant promises in maintaining the Davidic line through the centuries. In keeping with the priestly interest of Chronicles, special attention is also paid to the tribe of Levi.

The whole book of 1 Chronicles, like 2 Samuel, is dedicated to the life of David. It begins with the genealogy of the royal line of David (chs. 1–9) before surveying key events of the reign of David (chs. 10–29).

   D. Coronation of Solomon 29:20–25
   E. Death of King David 29:26–30
Second Chronicles begins with the reign of Solomon (chs. 1–9). While these chapters relate the grandeur of Solomon’s kingdom, their primary concern is to describe the construction and dedication of the temple. The balance of 2 Chronicles (chs. 10–36) is a history of the Davidic dynasty, with particular attention to the history of temple worship. The book concludes with the edict of Cyrus of Persia ordering the rebuilding of the temple. Other Bible charts, maps, and study helps relevant to the material in Chronicles may be found in the sections covering the books of Samuel and Kings.

The Temple
The temple, located in Jerusalem, was the center of the religious life of the Jewish people. In this sanctuary devoted to worship of the one true God, priests offered sacrifices to God to atone for the sins of the nation of Israel. Through temple services, the Jewish people pledged their lives to follow the laws and teachings of their creator.

Before the temple was built, the tabernacle was used as a place of worship by the Hebrew people. During much of their history, the tabernacle was moved from place to place to accompany the nation of Israel in their wanderings (Ex. 40). But after they settled in their permanent home in the Land of Promise, God commanded through His servant David that the temple be constructed. This more ornate structure, devoted to worship, would be a permanent fixture in their capital city (1 Chr. 28).

Three separate temples were actually built in Jerusalem across a period of about a thousand years in Jewish history. All three were built on the same site—on a hill known as Mount Moriah in the eastern section of the Holy City (2 Chr. 3:1).

The first temple, built by King Solomon about 960 B.C., stood on a platform about ten feet high with ten steps leading to an entrance flanked by two stone pillars. Thousands of common laborers and skilled craftsmen were involved in its construction (1 Kin. 6; 7; 2 Chr. 3; 4). This building was destroyed by the Babylonians when they captured Jerusalem in 586 B.C. But Cyrus, king of Persia, authorized reconstruction of this building on the same site when he allowed the Jewish people to return to Jerusalem (Ezra 1). This structure, known as Zerubbabel’s temple, was completed about 515 B.C. at the urging of the prophets Haggai and Zechariah (Ezra 6:13–15).

Several centuries later, Herod the Great, Roman ruler of Palestine, ordered construction of the third temple—an ornate, cream-colored building of stone and gold—to appease the Jewish people. This temple was the structure to which Jesus referred in speaking of His resurrection (John 2:19, 20). As He predicted, this temple was destroyed by the Romans about 40 years after His resurrection and ascension— in A.D. 70.

The accounts of Solomon’s temple in the Old Testament suggest it had an inner courtyard, as well as an outer courtyard. The three main objects in the inner courtyard were (1) the bronze altar used for burnt offerings (1 Kin. 8:22, 64; 9:25); (2) the sea of cast bronze, which held water for ritual washings by the priests (1 Kin. 7:23–26); and (3) twelve oxen, apparently also cast bronze, which held the sea of bronze on their backs (1 Kin. 7:25).

In the inner courtyard was an area known as the holy place, which contained the golden incense altar, the table with showbread, five pairs of lampstands, and utensils used for offering sacrifices (1 Kin. 7:48–50). Beyond this area was a room known as the Most Holy Place, or the Holy of Holies, a restricted place which only the high priest could enter. Even he could go into this area only once a year—on the Day of Atonement when he went inside to make atonement for his own sins and then for the sins of the people (Lev. 16). In this room was the ark of the covenant, containing the stone tablets on which the Ten Commandments were written. God’s presence was manifested in the Most Holy Place as a cloud (1 Kin. 8:5–11).

Jesus related to the temple in several ways. He showed respect for the temple and referred to it as “My Father’s house” (John 2:16). His zeal led Him to purge the temple of merchants who were selling sacrificial animals, thus defiling the “house of prayer” (Mark 11:15–17). But as much as He respected the house of God, Jesus also taught that He was greater than the temple (Matt. 12:6).

His superiority to the temple was clearly shown when the veil of the temple was split from top to bottom at His death (Matt. 27:51). The veil hung before the most sacred place in the temple to keep out all persons except the Jewish high priest. The tearing of the veil symbolized that every believer has unhindered access to God through His Son Jesus Christ because of His sacrificial death on our behalf.

See chart, “Solomon’s Temple”.

Lesson 1 – Jul 11th: 1 Chronicles 1-9

OVERVIEW
The genealogy from Adam to Abraham to Israel is the main focus. The genealogies of the descendants of the 12 tribes and other significant figures are given as well. The exiles who returned from Babylon are also listed, including the priests and Levites.

I. FROM ADAM TO ISAAC’S SONS (1:1–54)
II. THE TRIBES OF ISRAEL AND THEIR DESCENDANTS (2:1–9:44)
III. THE RETURNING EXILES (9:1–34)

EXPLORE IT
1. Who is the first person listed in the genealogical records? (1:1)
2. Who were the sons of Noah? (1:4)
3. Who were the sons of Abram (Abraham)? (1:28)
4. Who were the sons of Isaac? (1:34)
5. Who were the sons of Israel? (2:1-2)
6. Who was the father of David? (2:13-15)
7. For what is Jabez remembered? (4:9-10)
