

Bible and ecology: Reading scripture through ecological eyes

Monday 19th September, 10:00am to 5:00pm

Uniting College for Leadership and Theology
34 Lipsett Tce, Brooklyn Park, SA 5032

In recent years, in the context of growing ecological awareness, biblical scholars have been working to move beyond human-focused perspectives and read the Bible with a deliberate sympathy for the wider Earth community. In this full-day webinar, we will hear from scholars around the country about reading the Bible through “ecological eyes”, and will practise applying such lenses to scripture.

You are invited to join a hub in each state, or organise a small group in your local area to join in. It will also be possible to connect in as an individual, but we recommend coming along to enjoy the benefits of face to face interaction

Cost: Donation. Morning tea and afternoon tea provided. BYO lunch.

Registrations: More information and register your attendance via <http://unitingearthweb.org.au/events>

Brought to you by Uniting Earth Ministry, in collaboration with theological colleges across the country.
