Sex doc says she has seen change for good

Dr. Ruth spoke Monday night to kick off Virginia Tech's first Jewish Awareness Month.

Accordingly, Virginia Tech's Burruss Auditorium was packed Monday night as the educator known affectionately as "Dr. Ruth" kicked off the school's first Jewish Awareness Month.

The event was sponsored by Hillel at Virginia Tech, a Jewish-life organization.

See DOC, 5

Sen. Chichester won't seek re-election

The Northumberland County Republican was a chief figure in Virginia's recent budget battles.

By Michael Sluss
mike.sluss@roanoke.com
(504) 697-5585

RICHMOND — Republican John Chichester, the influential chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, will retire rather than seek re-election later this year, meaning the leadership of both General Assembly budget committees will change in 2008.

Chichester announced his decision Monday, saying he concluded that "the end of this term is the right one for me to step down."

Chichester, 69, has served in the Senate since 1978 and has chaired the Finance Committee since Republicans took control of the Senate in 2000. He lives in Northumberland County, but built his political base in Stafford County.

In a telephone interview, Chichester described his legislative duties as "demanding" and said he wants to spend more time with his wife, Karen.

Chichester's announcement comes a week after Del. Vince Callahan of Fairfax County, the Republican chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said he will retire. Chichester and Callahan have been the chief figures in General Assembly budget negotiations since 2000.

If the GOP stays in power after the 2007 elections, lawmakers from Western Virginia could be in line to replace them.

Inside this section

SENTENCING
An ex-Roanoke sheriff's deputy convicted of dealing drugs in the jail in 2005 will serve a total of eight years in prison.

EDITORIALS
Tens of thousands of American children unnecessarily were dropped from Medicaid rolls.

WEATHER
Partly cloudy and unseasonably warm today with a high of 76 degrees.