INTACTIVIST OF THE MONTH: JAMES LOEWEN

In June 2011, he interviewed Intact America's Executive Director, Georganne Chapin. "I hold James Loewen in the highest esteem as an interviewer, photographer and filmmaker," she said recently. "But even more, I admire him as a kind and deeply insightful friend. If you look at the interviews James has filmed, you will see that all of his subjects—without exception—are open and interesting. This is a result of James' gently probing questions, and a demeanor that conveys safety and trust. We are very lucky to have James as a chronicler of the intactivist movement."

Ashley Wilder I see lots of intactivists body shame cut men, they call them "stubby wubby" or tell them they can't possibly be ok with having half their penis missing. I've seen a couple flat out say they'd never sleep with a cut man because cut penis are scarred and disgusting. Most cut men had no say in the matter so why is it ok for intactivists to make these remarks when we jump on people for shaming intact men?

Marilyn Fayre Milos

I've decided not to go to his memorial tomorrow. I would carry balloons and dance on his casket. He was the first doctor at the AAP to say that there are benefits as well as risks. That was the beginning of the AAP's move toward protecting doctors instead of babies! Schoen is responsible for the suffering of more babies than most doctors. Let us hope their tortured screams haunt him for eternity.

That word is COWARD.

Maybe we aren't getting the results we would like because we are flocking to these posts and literally harassing these people. I feel like it's time for a new approach to sharing information.

I do strongly believe that infant genital mutilation (circumci$ion) is the most profound and evil violation that has taken hold of the American population, and I mean throughout the entire history of the United States. This is not to discount other violations, as the United States has seen no shortage of them, but infant/child penis cutting is an evil that seems to know no bounds. No race is safe, no age is safe (doctor$ often manipulate adult men into being cut), and, most c... Continue Reading

Hi Everyone
Haven't been able to post anything for a week now because my therapist asked me to not do any intactavism because she speculated that my intactavism might be aiding to my nightmares and flashbacks. I didn't agree with her but I did as she asked. I think she is understanding little by little of what I go through.
Anyway, that aside, does anyone have any links that I might show her about circumcision causing brain damage? She was in disbelief that this happens. Thanks all for putting up with many of my issues. You guys play a big part in my healing process 😊

We've come to the conclusion that most alien abduction memories are actually forced circumcision memories of which the brain is trying to make sense of. Most #alienabduction stories come from the USA and involve forced medical sex organ procedures while the abductee is totally helpless. Coincidence? Forced infant #circumcision perfectly explains alien abduction stories mostly coming from one of the few places in the world that performs genital surgery in mass on non-consenting infants with no anesthesia as their first major experience that permanently imprints on the brain as the most traumatic experience of their lives.

YES, I am INTACT. :)

And my father is German, but my mother is American of German-JEWISH and Filipina descent. She's extremely religious, but thankfully had the brains to protect me from circumcision. I think my German father also persuaded her not to cut me.

I could easily have become a victim of circumcision. I escaped the knife. And because of this, I feel obligated to speak out against circumcision. I created this profile to channel my rage and anger at this barbaric practice, also because I saw what was needed was an "angry cut man".

I hope you can forgive deception and I hope you don't tell everyone, because "David J. Bernstein's anger" works very well in discussions! :)

David J. Bernstein
PLEASE DON'T TELL ANYONE. Only a handful of people and now YOU GUYS know about this.

I worked hard to get the David Bernstein profile where it is. If this leaks to the cutters or other intactivists, it'll be a major blow to the movement.

Given that many intactivists don't use their real names, nor photos of themselves, I would hope that this group is solely to ID cutters in disguise, not intactivists who are using alternate/mole accounts. Right? I'm all for identifying cutter lurkers, but I'm totally against exposing intactivists' alternate accounts, such as the David Bernstein event that happened last spring. That was a shame, and he was exposed by "intactivists". He was clearly on our team (and still is, of course), yet someone on the inside sold him down the river to the cutters. Totally pathetic. If they're contributing facts and making headway in a debate, I really don't see how it matters whether or not the account is "real".

Maybe that's just me...

Intactivists are encouraged to spread false and "incredible" claims.

Jason Fairfield

I disagree with the premise that intactivists have to be so scrupulous as to be unassailable, airtight, sterile with any and all claims. To retreat there is to be ready to just pack up and go home.

I'm of the other camp. I think intactivists should be out there claiming that circumcision makes it impossible to get chlamydia (one could certainly infer that from the 1998 Laumann study) or even that keeping your foreskin makes it 10 times less likely that you'll get lung cancer. I'm OK with people just flooding the public with incredible claims if it gets people to stop circumcising.

My audience isn't the fact-checkers; it's average Americans who spread gossip and don't know how to fact check. If all Americans stopped circumcising because of an incorrect meme - the original meaning of meme - that only circumcised men get prostate cancer or only circumcised baby boys die of AIDS, then boys win. It's that simple.

Judaism is one of the main obstacles intactivism faces. A doctor at the 2014 AAP convention told Lloyd Schofield, "I know... We agree with you! But, every time we try to make some sort of policy change, the Jews freak out!" Judaism, medical greed, and the psychological illness that makes a cut man want to cut his own son... I'd say those are the three main driving forces behind male genital mutilation, not necessarily in that order.

So what if you don't want your baby's penis cut but you just want to get him a ritual blow job from an old man- can you hire a mohel to just suck your baby's penis without cutting it? Can you just do it yourself legally if you say it's for your religion and wear a robe and put a scarf over your head?

I get asked a lot why circumcision documentaries aren't on Netflix or Docurama... the simple truth is that our media is run by Jews. Nothing against the Jewish faith but they sure love to cut their baby dick and they surely don't want you to know how barbaric they are...

INTACTIVIST OF THE MONTH: BLOODSTAINED MEN

APRIL 2014: Fighting to end circumcision means taking risks, speaking out, and putting your own fears aside in the name of human rights. You may have seen photos of the Bloodstained Men at intactivist demonstrations, wearing white jumpsuits with bright red stains on their crotches. They stop traffic. They make people look twice. They instigate conversation. And they change minds—which is why we're honoring them as our Intactivists of the Month.

Many people participate in Bloodstained Men demonstrations around the world, but three people in particular are worth special mention: Richard Duncker, the British intactivist and founder of MenDoComplain.com who started the bloodstained jumpsuit movement, followed by Jonathon Conte and Brother K, two Americans who have brought Richard's idea to the forefront of intactivism in the United States.

“The enemy is not an intactivist who might step outside our personal comfort zones. If we think this way, we will cannibalize ourselves, rather than keeping the focus on the real enemy.

The enemy is any person who circumcises a child. We need to stop questioning the motives of those whose aim it is to make all circumcisers feel bad, so they stop circumcising.”
