This April, RAPS will offer hands-on training in small group workshops on the electronic common technical document format (eCTD). Two types of workshops will be offered to those who want an interactive experience to help understand the structure and processes needed to build electronic submissions and implement operational changes.

APR

10–11

Know the Fundamentals

Get an in-depth understanding of the underlying CTD structure upon which electronic submissions are built. RAPS

eCTD Introduction Workshop provides best practices and suggestions for implementing operational changes that will lead to successful electronic regulatory applications

During the Introduction Workshops you will learn:

- Different submission types
- Which applications need to be submitted electronically
- How to understand and follow the CTD structure
- How to use the M4 series of guidances
- How to generate agency-compliant PDF files

APR

12–13

Already Using eCTD?

If you already prepare documents or have a working knowledge of the CTD format, eCTD Intermediate Workshop is right for you. You will learn how to QC and validate the eCTD, how metadata and study tagging files work, and more.

During the Intermediate Workshops you will learn:

- How to comply with the May 2018 electronic submissions requirements
- Which agency guidelines and technical specifications publishers need to follow
- How to apply ICH and regional requirements
- How to compile documents into the XML backbone of an eCTD
- How to QC and validate an eCTD
