Your Participation at the Forum will:

- Focus your attention on Megacities, Water, Climate Change and the need for urgent and collaborative action
- Help you understand the Nexus concept and the interdependencies of its water-food-energy-climate change constituents in the context of urban Asia
- Give you insights into the dynamics of the relationships – energy water efficiency, food security, and climate risk mitigation
- Show you how other cities are using the concept to make best use of water, energy, and food resources
- Enable you to appreciate the latest technologies and processes that will help in addressing the resource crisis
- Expose you to the tools available for analyzing cross-sector impacts, and for designing policy and program-based solutions.
- Help you join hands with over 250 water and energy utility professionals, city mayors and councilors, leading climate scientists and other academics, and technology leaders
