

Shout out to Victoria Macias-Alarcon- who is going to Antarctica!

Victoria was chosen by J.A.S.E. to represent the U.S. from 250 applicants to join a Chilean led expedition, next winter (summer in Antarctica) for 2 weeks, to study polar science, climate and environmental change. Speaking fluent Spanish and being an athlete in excellent health helped her to be chosen for the expedition. Speaking Spanish and healthy living gets you cred & glaciers!

Even though her mom was convinced that she would be chosen, she was shocked when she got the call. Luckily, she was with friends who cried tears of joy right along side her. Congratulations Victoria, we look forward to hearing all about your adventure! Safe journey, newfound wisdom and enjoy the penguins 😊
