BE A LEAN LEADER!

The New England Lean Consortium will be holding its September 2019 Lean Leaders Meeting at VIBCO Vibrators in Wyoming, RI, on Friday, September 20, 2019.

Karl Wadensten is the entrepreneur and CEO leading VIBCO, an innovative Rhode Island-based manufacturing company, and a world leader in industrial vibration products used in construction, manufacturing, and infrastructure. "Our goal at VIBCO is to deliver the right product at the right time. We have the flexibility in our facility and employees to immediately respond to customer demand.

Teams can adjust assembly operations with minimal notice to changes in the schedule. Through the use of our lean manufacturing principles, we have the ability to produce any product model at any hour of the day to meet our customers same day next day needs." VIBCO has been a pioneer in Lean Short Cycle Time manufacturing through innovative leadership and vision.

Karl has been conducting a lot of work with the ShingiJutsu USA, a global leader in operations process improvement. During this Lean Leaders meeting, we will focus on the use of a Barashi Diagram as a new way to evaluate your manufacturing operation and create flow throughout your production process.

You will also have an opportunity to meet with our innovative engineering team and graduate student group of Lean practitioners who will become the Lean Leaders of the future.

You are invited to come and experience the Synergistic Power of a New England Lean Consortium Lean Leaders Meeting.
